For Defeat of Hospital Plan

Campbell Blames Civic Leaders

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Monday that Saturday's hospital financing referendum went down the drain because it was opposed all the way by Greater Victoria's municipal leaders.

How could civic leaders be in disagreement when scope of the regional board's responsibilities was hammered out months ago in a series of in-camera meetings with the municipal affairs minister?

Mr. Campbell explained what had happened when he met behind closed doors with mayor and reeves of Greater Victoria and representatives of nearby areas to plan the regional board's functions.

Municipal leaders generally agreed that the new board should look after such problems as regional parks, a regional sewer study and uniform control of sale of fireworks, he said.

They did not want the hospital function to be included. The municipal affairs minister had established a policy that no other function would be added to the regional board unless there was mutual agreement among the participants.

After this policy had been established, however, the federal government announced that a Canadian medicare scheme would be brought in by 1967.

This announcement, said Mr. Campbell, meant "there would be an increasing need for hospitals here."

He therefore went against the policy which he had established, and called the mayor, reeves and representatives together for a meeting on Oct. 4, at which time he said he intended to include administration of hospital

No-War Pledge

Pakistan Makes Peace Bid

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan Monday offered to sign a "no war pledge" with India in an attempt to bring lasting peace to the Asian subcontinent.

Ayub made the dramatic offer in a remarkably short address before the 117-member General Assembly. At the same time, Ayub demanded that India "honor" a commitment to hold plebiscites to settle the future of the disputed area of Kashmir.

The Indian delegation heard Ayub's words but failed to join in the burst of applause that greeted the Pakistani president when he concluded his address.

Noting that India and Pakistan "cannot afford to live in a state of tension," Ayub said a "way must be found out of this vicious circle" of conflict that has embroiled the two Asian powers for two decades.

"For my part," he said, "I make this offer: 'Let India and Pakistan sign a no-war pledge' and 'let us also agree to settle all disputes through negotiation or mediation.'"

Ayub attempted to bypass India's insistence that the future of Kashmir has long been

Britain, Ireland Free Trade

LONDON (Reuters)—A free-trade agreement between Britain and Ireland was reached at talks in London, it was officially announced Monday night.

The agreement probably will be signed today.

The announcement came after a round of talks lasting until after midnight.

Prime ministers of the two countries, Harold Wilson and Sean Lemass, led the negotiations on the Anglo-Irish free trade agreement.

The two-nation free trade area would boost sales of Irish farm products to Britain and of British manufactured goods to Ireland.

Quarantine Of North Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Republicans urged President Johnson Monday to apply against North Vietnam the kind of quarantine the late president John F. Kennedy used against Cuba in the 1962 missile crisis.

A statement assailed what it called "the inadequacy of Johnson's leadership in fighting the Southeast Asia war."

Allied Drives Kill 800 Viet Cong Over Past Week

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. air force B-52 bombers from Guam were hurled against Communist Viet Cong hideouts above Phuoc Valley for the third consecutive day Tuesday as U.S. marines continued to press deeper into the Communist base area.

Three major battles of the past week have accounted for more than 800 Viet Cong dead, according to both estimates and number of confirmed kills.

There was no significant Viet Cong resistance as the leathernecks probed into caves big enough to hide a truck, and hauled out tons of food and Viet Cong supplies south of Da Nang.

In a successful campaign 75 miles southwest of Saigon, Vietnam, U.S. government soldiers killed 154 Viet Cong guerrillas, an American military spokesman said Tuesday.

The dead Viet Cong were counted on the battlefield in Vinh Binh province and were included in a "final report" marking the close of the two-day campaign Monday night.

The Vinh Binh victory came on the heels of another battle that accounted for another 151 Communist killed over the weekend in Go Cong province, 35 miles southwest of Saigon.

Buddhists Demand Apology By U.S.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A plastic dust cover carelessly left in a fuel line would have blocked the launch of the Gemini 6 space craft even if an electrical plug had not fallen out of the tail of the Titan II booster rocket.

And, if astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell had not been allowed to strip off their space suits at the same time, there might have been some doubt they could endure the discomforts of 14 days in space in the Gemini 7.

These disclosures came Monday as Borman and Lovell drove the Gemini 7 on toward new endurance records, and got the example of living news that their rendezvous with Gemini 6 probably would be made at last, on Wednesday.

Gemini 7 entered its 13th orbit at 8:02 p.m. EST.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said a review of Sunday's launch failure disclosed that one of the Titan's engines was malfunctioning when a false signal went out for both of them to shut down after ignition.

The erroneous signal was given when an electrical plug, which tells the computer when the rocket leaves the pad, fell out of the booster. Because the computer knew the rocket still was on the pad, it sensed trouble and ordered a shutdown.

But NASA said Monday that even if this command had not been given, another would have gone out 1:03 seconds later because of a malfunction in one engine caused by the dust cover.

Test Freedman Report

OTTAWA (CP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (BRT) is scheduled to open contract negotiations with the CNR Thursday in what will be the first test of revolutionary proposals made last week by the Freedman inquiry into CNR crew run-throughs.

W. P. Kelly, BRT vice-president, said in an interview Monday the brotherhood's negotiators intend to make a bargain-issuance of Mr. Justice Sam-uel Freedman's recommendations that the CNR negotiate with its unions on new working conditions brought about by technological change.

The Freedman report said there is an injustice in present labor laws, under which unions are helpless against such changes introduced while a collective agreement is in force. He recommended the law be changed and specifically urged the CNR to accept the new principle voluntarily.

Mr. Kelly said the BRT demands, served on the major railways last month before the Freedman report was made public, include the introduction of a contract clause providing that "no material change in conditions of employment" will be introduced without union-management negotiations.

A similar item was contained in the demands made by the union two years ago. It was later set aside during bargaining which led to a five-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract. That contract expires at the end of this month.

Four Face Charges After Gang Fracas

MOOSE JAW (CP)—One Moose Jaw youth was being held in custody, and three others were free on $12,000 bail Monday after a shooting incident involving youthful gangs in the fashionable North Hill section of Moose Jaw Sunday.

The fracas, which police said appeared to break out after one youth was abducted and assaulted by several others, and went to his gang for help, sent Wayne Lewry, 27, to hospital with undisclosed injuries. Lewry, nephew of Moose Jaw Mayor L. H. Lewry, was said to have been beaten with a wrench.

Revamp In Offing?

By HAROLD MORRISON
PARIS (CP) — The United States has mounted a low-key campaign for a five-year blueprint on North Atlantic force requirements while Britain has decided to press harder for a lid on rising NATO costs.

These moves likely will gain momentum as the NATO council, headed by Canada's external affairs minister, Paul Martin, opens its deliberations today with a look at deteriorating East-West relations and the trouble spots of Viet Nam and Rhodesia.

Martin, who has urged the members not to rock the boat, told a press conference on the eve of the ministerial talks he does not believe the existing situation is ripe for any fresh NATO decision-making.

MANY CONCEPTS
He expected many proposals would be studied, including the costs of maintaining troops and supplies in Europe, but that decisions may be left until the next meeting of foreign, defence and finance ministers in the spring.

One study, known to have been completed by NATO military men, would mean a sharp reduction in the concept of a future European war — shaping plans to fit a 30-day war from the present concept of a 90-day war. The new concept, it was learned, would be heartily endorsed by Britain, but the indications were that this also would be merely studied at the current meeting and left over for decisions next year.

MINISTERS INHIBITED
The foreign ministers are inhibited by two events: The current French presidential election campaign and the coming summit talks in the U.S. between President Johnson and British Prime Minister Wilson and between Johnson and West German Chancellor Erhard.

Decisions reached at the summit talks likely would have profound impact on the council's future deliberations.

Meanwhile, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk has indicated he would like to see the council consider long-range military planning, preparing a blueprint of requirements until 1970.

In the American view this would mean getting the military chiefs to decide what forces they require until 1970 and having the NATO members provide them, perhaps on terms in which Europe would pay an increased share of costs.

Negroes Offer Violence
SALISBURY (Reuters) — Police have reported anti-white violence in the Rhodesian capital as fresh Negro efforts built up to end the country's independence seized from Britain under white-minority rule.

Four gasoline bombs were thrown into houses in white residential suburbs of Salisbury Sunday night. They caused fires in three of them, but there was little damage and no one was hurt, police said. No arrests were made.

MEETING CALLED
With Wednesday the deadline for the Organization of African Unity to break relations with Britain unless it crushes the Rhodesian rebellion by then, Egypt called for a special OAU ministerial meeting by Dec. 21.

The announcement said Egypt feels some African countries now are hesitating about carrying out their severance threat, usually reliable sources in Cairo reported Monday.

Ethiopia has circulated a call to the OAU's 36 members for a postponement of the Dec. 15 deadline, an OAU spokesman said in Addis Ababa.

Kenya, meanwhile, was reported to be blocking all freight on planes passing through Nairobi to Rhodesia.

The Kenyan government also has ordered suspension of weekly Comet jet flights to Rhodesia by East African Airways, an airline source said in Nairobi. The airline is owned jointly by Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda.

'Still Serious'

Rhodesian Stress 'Serious'

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith Monday had a round of conferences with British and Commonwealth officials in continuing efforts to reduce strains provoked by the Rhodesian crisis.

Smith said later stress on the Commonwealth remains serious but he hopes that "we are going to come through, as long as the seriousness of the crisis is not underestimated."

MET OFFICIALS
The Toronto-born diplomat, who assumed the new office here in September, met with officials of the British Commonwealth relations office, Commonwealth high commissioners and George Ivan Smith, special representative in East and Central Africa of United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

General aim of the diplomatic activity is to develop policies towards the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia that would at least partly meet African demands for tougher action and avoid racial warfare in southern Africa.

CRUCIAL STAND
An authoritative source said Britain's stand at a special UN Security Council meeting on Rhodesia today would be crucial.

Support by Britain of Kenya's demand that economic sanctions against Rhodesia be ruled mandatory for all UN members would go a long way towards satisfying African opinion, the informant said.

IF BRITAIN BALKS
Should Britain balk at the UN move, some African governments might go ahead with plans to break diplomatically with Britain and bow to pressure to mount an armed campaign against Rhodesia's white government.

Arnold Smith said Monday he is encouraged by Nigeria's weekend proposal for a Commonwealth heads-of-government meeting on Rhodesia next month in Lagos.

MSA Covering Dental Surgery

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dental surgery will be covered by the benefits of the Medical Services Association (MSA) beginning Jan. 1.

President Dr. D. S. Munroe said at the annual meeting Monday that services of osteopathic physicians will also be included in MSA coverage.

Dr. Munroe said the doctor-owned association does not plan to enter the field of dentistry, but rather cover the various forms of surgery.

In his report, Dr. Munroe said administrative expenses reached a record low of 5.23 per cent during the last year. Income was 2 1/2 per cent higher than expenditures, he said.

Youth Appears In Connection With Murders

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 17-year-old youth charged with juvenile delinquency in connection with the assassination of five members of a family appeared in juvenile court Monday and was remanded to Friday for a psychiatric examination.

The youth is charged with five counts of delinquency by committing capital murder.

Police are awaiting the results of a toxicological examination to determine if Osborne Kosberg, his wife and three children were drugged before they were brutally attacked in their beds Friday.

Officers said sleeping pills may have been placed in milk shakes at the family home Thursday night.

An inquest will be held Wednesday into the deaths of Kosberg, 42, Mrs. Dorothy Kosberg, 40, and children Barry, 15, Gayle, 11 and Vincent, 2.

Survivors of the mass-murder were Marianne Kosberg, 13, who remains in poor condition in hospital with severe head wounds, and six-month-old Osborne Kosberg, Jr.

Police believe the baby escaped because the killer mistakenly thought him dead. The child's face was slightly bruised and he was having great difficulty breathing when he was found by police.

It was reported Monday night a report on the youth was sent to Attorney-General Bonner by the police psychiatrist.

It is possible the youth could never come to trial. The attorney-general's department could recommend he be committed to mental hospital by order-in-council.

The youth is known to have a history of mental disturbance.

After the Voting

THE RESULTS of the elections in the Greater Victoria area leave a variety of questions to be answered: all interesting, most of them perplexing, and one in particular of urgent importance.

This last, of course, is where the district goes now in regard to hospital expansion. Having rejected the proposal to raise the local share of hospital building costs by a regional levy averaging two mills, the Sooke-to-Sidney community has registered a strong protest against taxation of property for this purpose on top of all else. But unless the sharing formula is to be altered for all of British Columbia—which is clearly not the government's present intention—the region may have deprived itself of additional hospital accommodation it seriously and increasingly needs. The province can hardly make a special case of this one area. While the who-should-pay argument continues, as continue it must, are we to limp along on the inadequate system of private and municipal donations?

Similarly the apparent failure of the Greater Victoria School construction bylaw to gain the necessary majority for passage may be looked upon as a protest against the growing tax load on property. But to what avail? Postponing the inevitable in this case can only mean inconvenience and higher costs.

The fate of Oak Bay's fluoridation measure raises the question of how long it will be before the whole district has its water thus treated. Six years ago, voting in company with the other Greater Victoria municipalities, Oak Bay came closest to approving fluoridation with 42.3 per cent of favorable ballots. The population has thus grown at about 3 per cent a year. Does this mean a similar trend in Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt?

In Esquimalt, perhaps in the coming months there may be some mind-searching on the matter of sharing in the regional parks expenditures, since Esquimalt was alone among all the municipalities and unorganized territories in turning down the partnership. Can its residents and its council stand by this decision without umbrage?

And not the least of the questions, though of interest only as a matter of political philosophy, concerns a slight difference in attitude among the voters of individual municipalities. Mayor Wilson suggests, concerning the rejection of the hospital plan, that "there was just too much in one election for Victorians to digest." This would seem to be a logical explanation. But is it not peculiar, then, that the electorate of Saanich, confronted with eight ballots, should so strongly endorse the capital budget and approve the school bylaw by sufficient margin? Perhaps it was a matter of selective appetite rather than digestion.

In one respect, however, there is no question: the candidates, winners and losers, are all deserving of congratulation. And the voters, too, can give themselves a pat on the back for the unusually large turnout at the polls.

Freedom in Danger

THE CANADIAN government—or at least its acting finance minister, Mr. Mitchell Sharp—is reported to have agreed in principle to a new U.S. proposal that would reduce Ottawa control of Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. companies.

The move is part of the United States treasury effort to halt the serious erosion of gold reserves from that country.

In brief the U.S. government has asked Ottawa to allow it to "guide" U.S. owned Canadian companies along the financial lines that Washington feels is desirable in its national interest.

U.S. subsidiaries in Canada will for instance be limited in the amount they may pay back into the business; be asked to hold their new capital requirements to a stated level, and to place their short-term assets in the U.S. money market, rather than in the Canadian market as they do generally at present.

Washington has also asked Ottawa, and Ottawa, it is understood, has agreed, that the U.S. may also determine what percentage of Canadian profits are to be returned to the U.S. parent company in each year.

If this is to be taken at its face value it is clear that the old Canadian government policy of asking U.S. subsidiaries to "behave like good Canadians" is being seriously undermined.

It is clear that the U.S. parents will not only have to make sure they are offending no Canadian law, but they will also have to go to Washington for clearances as well on matters in which the Canadian government has hitherto been autonomous.

At the moment when U.S. policy fits in very nicely with Canada's attempts to restrain inflationary growth, and with its opposition to unbridled growth of foreign ownership of Canadian enterprises, there is no immediate clash of interests.

But accord on Canadian-U.S. affairs may not always exist, and the very fact that the U.S. has apparently won a greater measure of control over the Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. companies establishes a dangerous precedent, and is a move that in the end could endanger the independence of this country.

It is a pity that Parliament is not sitting. The watchdogs would like to know a lot more about Mr. Sharp's manoeuvrings.

Voice of Minority

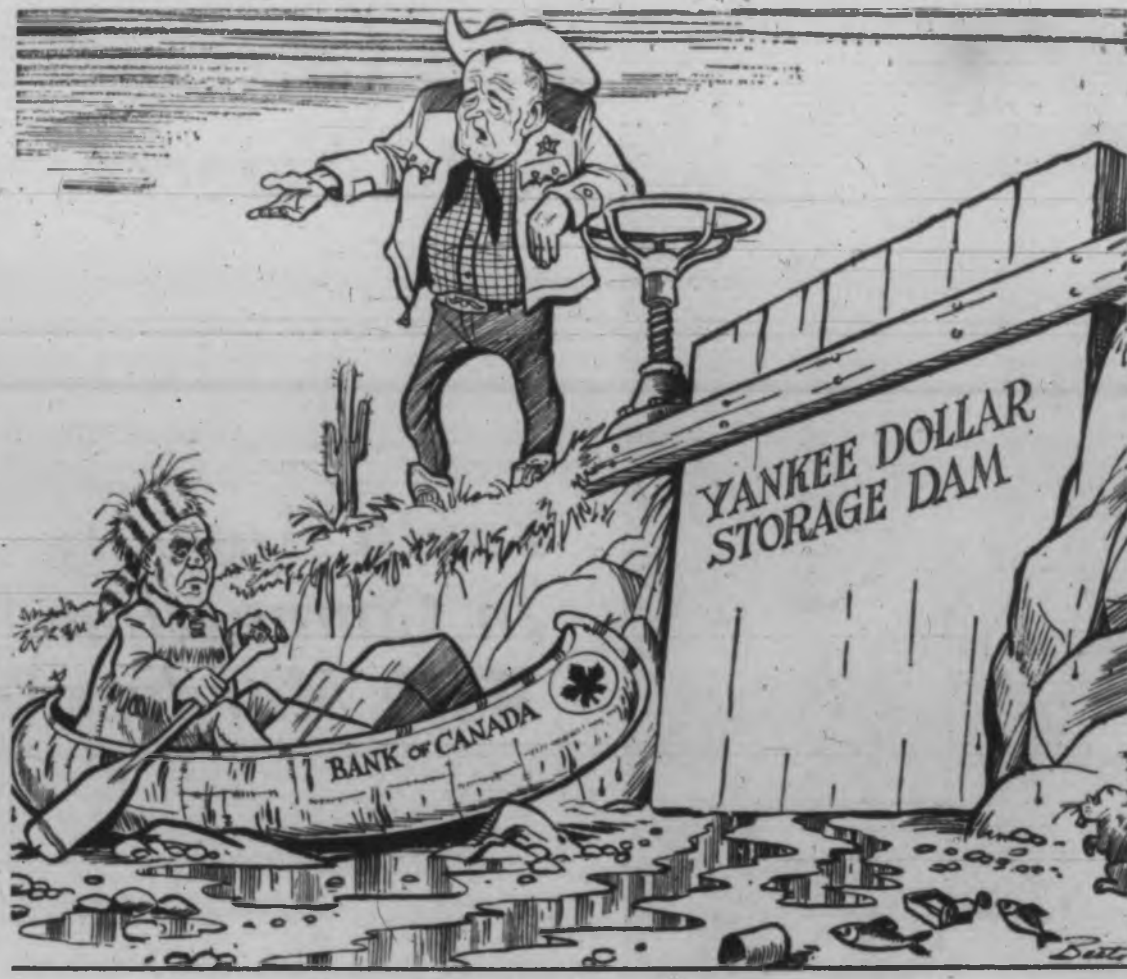

IT WAS INEVITABLE, as we pursue our destiny in Canada along bicultural or multicultural lines, that we should be faced with the suggestion that a Ukrainian Canadian be selected as the next governor-general after His Excellency, General the Rt. Hon. Georges Vanier, retires.

Some persons may be under the impression the idea was advanced facetiously to the Winnipeg session of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. It was not. It was presented in all seriousness by an earnest group of loyal Canadians, representing the Ukrainian organizations of the country.

The brief also protested that Ukrainian Canadians and those of other ethnic groups other than British or French rarely are given senior appointments in the federal public service.

"It is time," said the Ukrainian Canadians' brief, "for the government of Canada to do more than pay lip service to the contributions made by other ethnic groups."

Taking their lead from Quebec, they are also asking that their language be taught in public schools. As long as there are elements determined to preserve their ethnic individuality so long shall we flounder on a road to nationhood and true union.

"You got problems, we got problems."

General Charles de Gaulle

For France, a Man of Destiny

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP from London

HE is like a man taking his statue for a walk. A fellow officer said of Charles de Gaulle before the war. The statue still stalks beside the President of France.

The man himself has aged, his hair thinned and whitened. Now silver, the wispy mustache is well-nigh invisible. The elephant eyes have sunk into wrinkled pouches behind the huge nose. A big appetite and little exercise have developed a prominent paunch that the tent-like, double-breasted suits cannot hide. He moves with a ponderous roll, his head swinging from side to side, as if his body had the consistency of marble.

The status, unpromoted and undecorated since 1940, is still that of the acting brigadier who sprang up ready-made at the age of 49 to claim the legitimate leadership of France. Then, with granite stubbornness ("I was too weak to compromise") and through sheer force of character, he saved his country from total humiliation, and won it a place among the world powers after the war.

This alone was enough to put him among the great names of French history. The comparison with Joan of Arc is more than a joke. Gen. de Gaulle consciously fashioned the legendary figure on the lines of the ideal leader he described in "Le Fil de l'Épée" in 1932. He talks about it in the third person as if it has an independent existence. How else can one rationalize the superb cheek of a man who not only speaks for France, but for 25 years has calmly assumed he is France? Not even the most slavish of his many panegyrists can match the extravagant reverence of de Gaulle on de Gaulle. Of his retirement in 1946, he says in his memoirs, "With de Gaulle went that wind from the heights, that hope of achievement and that ambition for France which upheld the national soul."

The most remarkable thing about the recent first-round election in France is that de Gaulle has brought the general to the level of politicians, in a contest for the votes of ordinary men and women. It was a hard decision. The risk of damaging his already established historical image, more than anything else, made him hesitate. He has always feared the effects of old age, but weighed the lessons of France's Marshal Petain's disastrous allyship against Germany's Konrad Adenauer's frustration after stepping down.

With his memory and intellect intact, the general decided against a new period of "bitter solitude." One of his ministers said more fancifully: "The Fifth Republic is his little girl; he wanted to see that she grew up." So, at the age of 73, the rebel of 1940 and the savior of 1958 was a candidate in a direct election for the first time in his life.

Till now he has been the man of exceptional and stirring times. He groomed himself for the role. He talked long ago of "the melancholy of ordinary days." He is at his best in moments of crisis and disaster. He is no Napoleon. He has neither the thirst for military conquest (he dismantled the French empire) nor Napoleon's genius for administration (how much of the Fifth Republic will survive him?) and he twice resisted openings for dictatorship.

As a candidate, he coolly offered Frenchmen the choice between "de Gaulle or chaos." Even in an election he cannot hide his contempt for lesser men and their petty motives. He has always distinguished between France and the French. He offered them no mundane electoral promises, no government platform, no ideology and no party machine. He is ready to call his own. (He came to see his ill-fated rally of the French people as a sin against his historical image; he relies on the neo-Gaullist movement for the French Republic but disowns it.)

The name and its history, with capital "H," should be enough. "You-know-me," the most secretive of statesmen assured his electors. Everyone by now has seen him on television. A high proportion of French citizens have shaken his hand at least once during his frequent "crowd baths" over the past seven years. Some may remember, from the day of the rebel army assassination plots, that his blood group is O-rhesus positive. Few people know the man well.

He has no intimate friends. He stands on ceremony. His cool, austere manner keeps even those he trusts at a distance. His attitude "of a king in exile" irritated the Military Academy examiners in 1931. It is now his natural pose. He probably does have a special affection for his premier, Georges Pompidou, and for Andre Malraux, the stage-manager of Gaullist pomp and spectacle, but he is said to put the greatest trust in his foreign minister, Couve de Murville, who is even more glacial than himself.

He keeps sentiment and personal feelings under iron control. Gratitude for loyal service would never stop him dismissing a minister who had outlived his usefulness. Yet he has mellowed with age. To his habitual old-world courtesy he has added a warmer interest in the personal lives of those around him. He has taken to sending flowers to ministers' wives when they have babies. He slips out of the Elysee Palace to have dinner service. He no longer practices the gratuitous snub. Relaxing with a small, trusted group, he can be charming, witty, even gay, using earthy

His greatest achievement is the gift of language.

By BRYANT EVANS

SOME people—usually non-scientists—become so enamored with the accomplishments of science that they assume that science can answer all questions and that it is the only route to a better world.

About half a century ago Vilfredo Pareto, the Italian engineer-economist-sociologist, denied this viewpoint. Science and logic, he thought, had a very important place in human affairs but only when they could work in a laboratory situation with enough facts to use logic rigorously.

He cited language as a human development that was non-scientific and remarked that no attempt to invent a scientific language had succeeded nearly as well as the language that had grown from roots established in primitive times.

In an era in which science looms so large, I like to sit back and admire the phenomenon of human language. Of all our inventions, it is the greatest—greater than fire, greater than the wheel, greater than agriculture, greater than the electronic computer.

No other known being has a real language. By "real language" I mean the use of vocal and written symbols for the unseen. Other animals can communicate about things that they can see. But so far there is no evidence that even the intellectual porpoises can convey about anything in another time or place. With language, we can invoke objects in our past experience and make them understood to others who have not seen or heard them. We can invoke events of the future and by language determine them. We can communicate about purely imaginary worlds.

From another standpoint language impresses us as an artifact of human experience superior to all of the rules of archaeology. These words I use to tell what I have seen or thought are ready-made because people for an untold number of millennia have seen and thought of things similar enough to invent words for me. Language also is the best evidence of the brotherhood of man. If we were not much alike in our experience and our inner lives, how could there be words that have so much meaning for all of us?

Language getting into difficulty because people no longer share as much identical experience? This is just a speculation. But if language contains clues to the past, it is possible that it may contain many clues to the present. As far as I know, no one has brought tools of science to examine the sometimes weedy growth among our words.

Gen. de Gaulle is utterly calm in times of crisis, but his anger can be roused over a botched detail or a serious political blunder. But his anger now is calculated and controlled. He rarely bawls people out as he did during the war. He may not even have offenders brought before him. But the icy politeness, cutting notes he sends them are equally feared. He is the unquestioned boss. He listens to advice and can take criticism, but his whole manner discourages it. By his nature and discipline, he is intimidating.

He rules France from a gilt desk topped with red leather in a first-floor office overlooking the gardens of the Elysee Palace. Facing him beyond a crystal chandelier is a tapestry showing "Don Quixote cured of his madness by wisdom."

There are three telephones on a low table beside his desk, but he hardly ever uses them. When he wants to speak urgently with a minister, he presses a button and asks an aide to get the man concerned to phone in. Normally, he sends out a summons in writing. He generally sees the prime minister privately three or four times a week; the foreign minister once. Others may not be called in for months on end.

The general gives far fewer audiences now than he did five or six years ago, does less reading and works shorter hours. After his prostate operation last year he tested his own physical and mental energy during his incredible tour of the whole of South America. He did spot-checks on his memory, asking for the names of a string of local dignitaries at the last moment, and tripping them off effortlessly off his tongue in the course of a speech. He satisfied himself that everything was working in order. A high official, who watched the performance, said "his mind is a perfect piece of electronic equipment." Since then the general has conserved his strength and failing eyesight.

This fabulous memory is essential to the magic and mystery of de Gaulle. So is the intense detailed preparation. De Gaulle is never impetuous. He leaves little to chance. Weeks before Rhodesia's declaration of independence, he had decided how France should react at the United Nations. One of his advisers believed he would be brilliant at the American-type cut-and-thrust press conference. He prefers the recited speeches for their weight, precision and rarity value. He uses the press just as he uses anything and anyone who suits his purpose.

A man who should know says that de Gaulle has grown even more machievellian in old age. Compared with his present mastery of political manoeuvre and sleight of hand, his wartime performance was "pretty straightforward."

For years he confused everyone in sight over Algeria. As a diplomatic juggler he is breathtaking, drawing approval from both Moscow and Peking, Cairo and Tel Aviv, playing cat and mouse with the common market, and keeping everyone guessing. He impresses through unpredictability and the illusion that he carries more weight than his country.

Rolling his cynical, pessimistic eyes over "the world as it is," de Gaulle scores ideology as bunk. He puts his faith in the permanence of sovereign nation-states and the durability of national interests. The guiding principles are simple — to further French prestige abroad and strengthen the state at home. They leave him ample scope to play the tactical game of power. His equivocation and secrecy put surprise on his side. The shock tactics made France appear more powerful than she is. They have won her world attention.

He made capital of his own indecision about a second term as president. He went to extraordinary lengths to keep up the suspense for the last minute, impressing TV crews and ministers at the Elysee till the pronouncement was on the air.

The one person who probably knew in advance was Madame de Gaulle. Years of co-habitation with a tall slice of history have taught her discretion. Even as the wife of the president, she contrived to stay in the background and keep the family out of the limelight. She still does her own shopping unnoticed, in a town where staring is instinctive and unabashed.

General de Gaulle is an attentive father and grandfather. He is naturally interested in the naval career of his son, Philippe. But he is not founding a dynasty, and will leave little property or money behind him. What he does want to bequeath to the world is an untarnished historical image, and perhaps the fourth volume of memoirs. His greatest achievement to date is his own personality. Further historians may be less impressed than his contemporaries by his statesmanship. They will hardly deny his greatness as a man.

In Peking's Eyes

Good Guys Are Colored

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT from Hong Kong

THE world as seen from Peking, the capital of Communist China, is a very simple place.

Just as even the youngest child, watching a TV western can tell the good guys from the bad guys by the color of their hats, the Chinese Communist leadership sees an entire world neatly and precisely divided — politically into red and white, ethnically into pigmented and white. Needless to say, it is the whites who are the bad guys in Peking's eyes, while the reds and the pigmented are the good guys.

Just as the dedicated television viewer knows that the good guys will finally triumph, the dedicated revolutionaries of Peking profess absolute faith in the ultimate triumph of the Communist peoples over the white capitalists.

Peking refuses to consider that its simple categories may be somewhat misleading when applied to the real world, rather than to melodramas. All the pigmented world is by no means pro-Communist, nor are all whites capitalists or, for that matter, all the capitalists whites. But that simple analysis is essential if the Chinese Communist leadership is to retain its faith in its own strategy.

For the same reason, the belief in inevitable worldwide victory for Chinese-style Communism is interpreting world events in the light of what Peking is sure must happen. Since Peking knows what will eventually happen in the end, everything that happens in the meantime points unerringly to the predestined end.

The Communist leadership is, at the moment, engaged in proving to itself that American demonstrations against the war in Viet Nam are really the beginning of the end of the present system in the United States.

Support for the prediction of "People's Revolution" in the United States is now drawn from the anti-war demonstrations. But it has always been basic to the Communists' grand strategy. For complex reasons which go deep into Chinese psychology and the past record of foreign exploitation and humiliation of China, the Chinese have placed themselves at the head of a somewhat mythical "world liberation movement."

Their belief that that movement must inevitably triumph is based upon a simple — if somewhat inaccurate — analysis of the world situation.

The Chinese really believe that capitalism has not altered at all since Karl Marx described the violent inequities of emergent capitalism more than 100 years ago. They therefore believe that as V. I. Lenin predicted, war between capitalist and socialist nations is inevitable — unless it can be avoided by prior revolution in the capitalist countries.

The people of the capitalist nations — Western Europe, North America, Japan and the Antipodes — are, the Chinese truly believe, groaning under the vilest oppression. They long only to overthrow their capitalist oppressors, but the grip of the "ruling circles" is too strong.

However, in the underdeveloped world—Africa, Latin America and Asia—the Chinese thesis holds that conditions are now ripe for revolution. Peking, therefore, seeks to encourage and to control those incipient revolutions by every means at its disposal.

Once the underdeveloped world is Communist, the thesis triumphantly concludes, it will be a simple matter to break the economic hold of the "ruling circles" of the capitalist nations by denying them markets and raw materials in the underdeveloped world. Once the iron control of the "exploiting classes" is cracked, the oppressed peoples of the capitalist world will rise in revolt and transfiguration of mankind will be accomplished — under China's wise leadership.

Given such a doctrine, it is not remarkable that the Chinese read into the present American protests against involvement in Viet Nam, the beginning of the end of American capitalism.

Storm Warning

U.S. Fiscal Policies Challenged

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AS though the air were not sufficiently charged with political tension, Chairman William McChesney Martin's action in casting the deciding vote for the higher interest rates ordered by the Federal Reserve Board adds a new element. The reaction of the stock market, particularly in banks stocks, makes it plain this was a welcome Christmas present for the financial community.

When Congress comes back there will be angry cries for Martin's head. The most impassioned screams of outrage have come from those who still speak for the Populist South and Southwest, notably Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana and Rep. Wright Patman of Texas. There is the loud echo of William Jennings Bryan — the "Crom of Gold," the "Conspiracy of the Wall Street Bankers," the farmer and the working man caught in the money squeeze.

It so happens that both Long and Patman are powerfully placed to direct an attack on the Federal Reserve stockpile in the best tradition of the Old West. Long has said he intends to take the chairmanship of the Senate finance committee left vacant by the retirement of that gracious guardian of the financial establishment, Harry F. Byrd. At the same time, Long means to keep his post as majority whip, second in importance only to that of majority leader.

As chairman of the House banking and currency committee, Patman has kept up a constant harassing attack on Martin and "tight money." At this unadulterated voice of Populism, he is as loathed by the powers that be in oil and banking in his native Texas as he is in Wall Street.

But because of his wide-ranging knowledge of the economy and how it operates — he was for many years professor of economics at the University of Chicago — the opposition of Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois will have a greater weight. Bankers themselves concede in their more candid moments that Douglas knows as much about the mysteries of finance and the money market as anyone in this capital, not excluding Martin himself.

Out of this background Douglas challenges the heart of the argument for higher interest rates. He contends that inflation is not a threat today since the United States has had the lowest increase in prices of any industrialized Western country. On the face of it the record is phenomenal — a 3 1/2 per cent rise in wholesale prices, using the 1957-59 level as a base.

Western European countries have had rises as high as 10 and 12 per cent in the same period of full or virtually full employment. Only Japan among the industrialized powers has done as well. This background will be fully developed in the investigation into the Federal Reserve action already announced by the Joint Economic Committee. Patman is chairman of that committee and Douglas is vice chairman.

It happens that Douglas is up for re-election next year. His opponent will almost certainly be industrialist Charles H. Percy. He is young (46), dynamic, personable.

If anything could solidify the establishment across the board in support of Percy against Douglas it is the conflict over the independence of the Federal Reserve Board and its right to determine the flow of money. Nevertheless the "Old Lion of the Prairies"—Douglas is 72—will put on the kind of intensive town-by-town and precinct-by-precinct campaign that has won him large majorities three times. He is an informed and even a scholarly roar, and it persuades the voters.

With close ties with the financial community Martin is a man of wealth who lives modestly. He has come through many attacks with a skill that a professional politician might envy. Five more years of his term as a member of the board are still to run. Since he became chairman of the board in 1951 he has dealt with Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson and no one can say that he came off second best.

'Everyone Is Welcome in Hungary'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Hungarian Embassy said Monday Canadians had visited Hungary. Only three had run into trouble and Mr. Varga said it wasn't political trouble.

Hungary is trying hard to develop a tourist industry and will welcome any Canadian visitor, First Secretary Istvan Varga said in an interview.

Since the embassy was established April 1, at least 5,000 Canadians had visited Hungary.

Golfers Find Plenty Greens.

IRVING, Tex. (AP)—Two Sunday golfers discovered a huge cache of counterfeit bills in the Trinity River and U.S. treasury agents pushed a search Monday for the forgers in this Dallas suburb. Officers said the bills may total as much as $200,000. They were found packed in a bag along with offset plates and photocopies.

Slide Danger Closes Roads

VIENNA (Reuters)—Police closed several mountain roads in West Austria Monday because of an acute danger of avalanches. They included the Arlberg Pass road, the main connection to Vorarlberg province in the extreme west of the country.

lished April 1, at least 5,000 Canadians had visited Hungary. Only three had run into trouble and Mr. Varga said it wasn't political trouble.

One was arrested for drunken driving and another in "a minor case" of smuggling.

The embassy was concerned about publicity given the third case—that of Tibor Torma of Toronto, arrested last month after an incident in a Hungarian cafe.

RIGHTWING WARNS
Mr. Varga said some "right wing Hungarian organizations and newspapers, especially in Toronto" have suggested the arrest signalled trouble for any Hungarian going back for a visit.

Mr. Torma left Hungary during the rebellion in 1956.

The embassy said this had nothing to do with the arrest. Mr. Varga said he believes Mr. Torma may be tried this week, probably on a charge of causing a disturbance.

IGNORE IT
"The Canadian public should not pay too much attention to two or three cases out of 5,000," he said. "Everyone is welcome in Hungary."

"We can assure you that if a visa is issued here, the only trouble you can get into is trouble made by yourself."

Hungary had given amnesty in 1963 to all those who left the country during the 1956-57 uprising. Even most of those jailed in Hungary had been freed.

The amnesty applied to the 30,000 Hungarians who had come to Canada. Only two to three per cent had been directly involved in the uprising anyway, Mr. Varga said.

He said "right wing elements"—usually Hungarians who came to Canada shortly after the Second World War—have consistently opposed better relations between the countries.

They had opposed establishment of diplomatic relations last year and now were trying to scare off Hungarians who would like to go back for a visit.

From de Gaulle

France Gets Word

PARIS (UPI) — President de Gaulle clenched an angry fist at his critics Monday, and asked for re-election because "nothing, nothing, nothing" has been done for post-war France except by his government.

De Gaulle, in his first television interview ever, reeled off a long list of achievements designed to show his government's effort to provide more roads, schools, telephones and houses for the French man-in-the-street.

COUNTER CRITICISM

The interview was designed to counter criticism that he cared a lot about grand policy designs, but little about the average Frenchman's daily problems.

De Gaulle's past aloofness to domestic issues was believed to have contributed to his failure to win outright re-election last Sunday. By polling only 44 per cent, he was forced to go into a runoff Dec. 19 with leftist Francois Mitterrand, who received 32 per cent of the vote.

BETTERED BY U.S.

De Gaulle said France, with a 1½ per cent annual increase in consumer prices, was bettered only by the United States in price stability.

And, he charged in his only dig at Washington, the United States has no inflation at home because, "thanks to what is being called the 'gold exchange standard' it is able to export its inflation, we have no such opportunity."

PAYMENTS DEFICIT

De Gaulle's remarks reflected his government's criticism of the U.S. balance of payments deficit as the main cause of the deficiencies of the international monetary system.

In his television remarks, De Gaulle never mentioned Mitterrand by name. But by repeatedly ridiculing the Fourth Republic, which crumbled in 1958 with his return to power, as a do-nothing regime, his aim clearly was to picture Mitterrand as a man partly responsible for the defect regime's weakness.

INCONSISTENT

Mitterrand, who appeared on television before De Gaulle earlier in the day, directed his criticism at De Gaulle's foreign policies as being inconsistent and shifting.

The 49-year-old left-wing candidate said he approved of De Gaulle's warnings that the Vietnamese war may escalate into a nuclear war. But, Mitterrand said, De Gaulle himself was endangering peace by pushing the buildup of a national nuclear arsenal.

TO SEEK BAN

Mitterrand said one of his first moves, if he were elected, would be to ask the United Nations to issue a ban on any further proliferation of nuclear armaments. Mitterrand is pledged to scuttle the French atomic armament program and convert nuclear plants to peaceful production.

DE GAULLE AHEAD

De Gaulle's chances, which his own party had rated at 50-50, are now reported by the news magazine to have risen to 57 per cent as against 43 per cent for Mitterrand.

Missing Man Alive in Jungle

AUCKLAND—Farmhand Frederick Wroe, believed dead after he disappeared 2½ years ago, is recovering in Wanganui Hospital after being found in the heart of a dense jungle, suffering from loss of memory.

Since Wroe, 62, disappeared in August, 1963, he lived on sucking pigs, possums, deer and eels caught with his bare hands, and used a hollow log as his home.

Nephews, hearing reports of a strange man being seen in the bush, renewed their long-abandoned search and eventually discovered Wroe, dressed only in a robe and gumboots, and bearded down to his waist.

Wroe said in hospital he left his suburban Wanganui home to walk into the city and "some men attacked me and bashed me over the head."

"The next thing I can remember, I was in dense bush with little (clothing) on. I didn't know the time of day, day of week or how many years I managed to survive."

Wroe said he used a hollow log to sleep in but occasionally made his home in deserted huts in the jungle.

He said his nephews gave him a beer to celebrate his return . . . "but it tasted like dirty street water."

Case Dismissed

Radar Trap Was Wrong

OTTAWA (CP)—A teen-aged Ottawa girl and her father convinced a magistrate Monday that radar traps can be wrong.

A charge of going 43 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone against Susan Joan Edeer, 18, was dismissed by Magistrate Sherwood after she decided to fight the charge because "evidence was such that I saw fit to dispute."

Susan's father told the court he was sure the small, four-year-old car she was driving was "mechanically unable to accelerate" to 43 miles an hour in the distance involved.

Magistrate Sherwood, after he dismissed the case, said that "this in no way reflects upon the reliability of the radar set."

"Every case is judged on its own merits. You have to remember that a radar set is still run by a human being."

Expo 67 Tickets On Sale At Far Reduced Prices

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Expo 1967 tickets are being offered at bargain prices for those who buy them early.

Joe McKinnon, who is B.C. director of the Montreal exhibition, was in Victoria Monday drumming up advance sales and appointing sales agents.

A season ticket to Expo costs $35 if bought at the gate, but it can be obtained retail now for $20 or wholesale for $16.

$1,000 ORDER
To qualify for wholesale prices you must place an order for $1,000 worth of tickets, says McKinnon.

For B.C. people the weekly ticket is expected to be the most popular passport. Its cost at the gate will be $12, but for the next few months it can be bought at $6.50 retail or $5 wholesale.

MANY INQUIRIES
"We have had a lot of inquiries about Expo tickets from the Victoria area," says McKinnon.

Anyone wanting to buy the tickets or make inquiries about them should write the Regional Director Expo 1967, 440 Seymour St., Vancouver 2.

FRED'S NEW JOB

A former member of the editorial staff of the Daily Colonist, Fred McNeil has been appointed by the Bank of Montreal as general manager of personnel planning. He was formerly with Ford of Canada.

This is part of a major reorganization of the Bank of Montreal's executive structure at its head office in Montreal and is a step towards further decentralization of decision making authority to the Bank's seven domestic divisions.

As from January 1, R. D. Mulholland, director and chief general manager will also become executive vice-president. J. Leonard Walker becomes senior general manager overseeing the Bank's day-to-day operations.

GETTING IN THE ACT

Acquisition of claims in the Dynasty-Vangorda area of the Yukon have been made by a number of mining companies. Silver Standard, Copper Ridge and Ulex Mines have three groups of claims which are to be explored by a jointly owned private company Tay River Mines.

ORE FOUND

Three blocks of claims have also been acquired by Mid West Mines Ltd., and Ventures Mining Company. Dynasty is reported to have found a large body of silver-lead-zinc ore in the area, in which it has Cyprus Mining of Los Angeles as a partner.

MORE GAS FOR U.S.

Westcoast Transmission Company has commenced deliveries of 50,000,000 cubic feet a day of natural gas to El Paso Natural Gas Company.

The 7,000,000,000 cubic feet order runs through to April 1966, and is the first step towards a new long term sale of 200,000,000 cubic feet a day by Westcoast to El Paso's subsidiary, Northwest Pipeline Corporation.

THIRD FOR PYRAMID

Pyramid Mining reports it has found a third anomaly at its Pine Point property. It is 4 1/2 miles southwest of the No. 1 anomaly and 1 1/2 miles southwest of the No. 2 anomaly.

TRACTOR MINI SIZE

British Motor Corporation claims to have built the smallest tractor in the world. It's called the BMC Mini an. has a four cylinder 948 cc diesel engine. It weighs less than a ton.

"Many high powered industrial and agricultural tractors of 60 horsepower and up are being regularly used to do 15 horsepower jobs," says BMC. Hence the Mini which BMC believes will have a ready market in Canada and elsewhere.

ELECTED TO BOARD

Arthur B. Allyne has been elected a director of Westcoast Transmission Company taking the place of George A. Martin, Vancouver, who has retired owing to ill-health.

Mr. Allyne joined Westcoast in 1960 and is chairman of the operating committee.

Promoter Gives Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — The preliminary hearing of John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission, on two charges of breach of trust by a public officer opened Monday with a stock promoter telling of buying stock owned by Mr. Campbell's wife at 10 cents a share over the market price.

David Winchell, president of Winchell Corp. Ltd., a firm which deals in real estate and securities, said he bought 5,000 shares of Chesterville Mines Ltd. for $1,637 last May 15—this is about 32 1/2 cents a share.

Later evidence from Lester Lower, assistant secretary at the Toronto Stock Exchange, showed the shares sold on the exchange at a high of 22 cents and a low of 20 cents May 14 and 15, 1964.

Mr. Winchell said he bought the stock because he was asked to do so by his stockbroker, Harry Richardson, a partner in the firm of Tom and Barnet.

James Goad, partner in J. L. Goad and Co., said Mr. Campbell's wife opened an account at his company in April, 1964. The account was identified only as 707.

Mr. Goad, who said he had known Campbell about 25 years, said Mrs. Campbell bought 2,500 shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., 2,000 White Star Copper and 5,000 Chesterville last April.

Axe Bites Paul

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Paul Richards, dismissed as general manager of National Baseball League Houston Astros, says he has no immediate plans but those close to him feel he will be back in baseball soon in some capacity.

Richards, who said he had not been fired before in his 39 years as a player, manager and general manager, was given his walking papers Sunday by Astro owner Roy Hofheinz.

Richards succeeded Gabe Paul as general manager of the Houston club in 1961. Paul left Cincinnati Reds to take the Houston position but resigned for personal reasons.

Hofheinz also dismissed field manager Luman Harris and named Grady Hatton to succeed him. Hatton has been manager of the Astro Oklahoma City farm club the past three years. Hofheinz selected Tal Smith, 32, as director of player personnel. Smith served as special assistant to Hofheinz. Hatton and Smith will share Richards' responsibilities but the general manager title will be eliminated.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS champion Margaret Smith, 23, of Australia, says she has no intention of turning professional and will retire from active competition within two years. National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing drivers earned $2,546,003 in prize money in 1965. East German ski jump team member Karl Helms Munk, 26, defeated West Germany over the weekend after a meet in Austria. Gay Brewer and Butch Baird won the $125,000 PCA four-ball golf event Saturday with a 72-hole score of 259. Under par. Brothers Jay and Lionel Hebert were second with 262.

ARNOLD PALMER, who won $57,770 in official money during the past golf season, plans to enter 20 tournaments in 1966, five more than 1965. Roma soccer team of Italy has been banned from the Inter-cities Fair Cup for three years because of the unruly actions of its fans. More than 500, including Negro baseball star Jackie Robinson, attended Branch Rickey's funeral in St. Louis Monday. Championships of three countries have entered the Tournament of Champions curling event in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Jan. 11-14. Ed Somerville of the U.S. Check Hay of Scotland and Terry Braumstein of Winnipeg all will be at the teebox.

FOOTBALL COACH Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers pleaded guilty to a charge of being a keeper of barking dogs and quietly paid a $10 fine in Winnipeg magistrate's court last week. Ron Northcott of Calgary defeated Del Melstyre of Edmonton in a final of the car bonspiel Saturday in Edmonton. Darrell Royal has changed his mind and will remain as coach of the University of Texas football team. He had been given an offer by Oklahoma. A Russian high jump star Valery Brumel says he will begin training again towards the end of 1966. He broke his right leg in a motorcycle accident in October.

Braves Block State

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin's bid for a temporary restraining order to bar the Atlanta Braves from playing home games anywhere except Milwaukee ran into a roadblock set up Monday by attorneys for the baseball club and the National League.

The attorneys asked for a halt in all legal proceedings in the state's antitrust suit until the court rules on their motion for dismissal of the case.

Circuit Court Judge Elmer W. Rolter scheduled oral arguments on the latest motion for today. Arguments also are scheduled today for two earlier motions in the case. They are:

A petition by the club to prevent the state from taking depositions from Braves officials, pending a decision on the dismissal motion.

A request by the state for an order which would require the Braves and the league to produce all correspondence, notes, records and other data involving the Braves' scheduled move to Atlanta next season.

Seven in Row for Detroit

Wings Could Catch Hawks

Chicago Black Hawks, who have been looking ahead at Montreal Canadiens, would do well to take a look behind them. Here come the Detroit Red Wings.

The Hawks were beaten, 5-3, on their home ice Sunday by Canadiens, who thus moved four points ahead of them in the National Hockey League. And the Red Wings, who went into the weekend eight points behind the Hawks, have cut the margin to four.

Detroit's seventh straight victory was scored Sunday at Boston, where Gordie Howe collected his 15th hat trick to lead the Wings to a 5-3 victory over the Bruins. Howe, in his 20th season, now has 13 goals and again until early in the third period when Parker MacDonald finally beat a hot Roger Crozier.

Floyd Smith and Doug Barkley got the other Detroit goals. Jean Beliveau and Yvan Cournoyer each scored twice for the Canadiens in Chicago, Beliveau getting the winning goal against the Hawks for the second straight night.

Ralph Backstrom scored the other goal for Canadiens and Ken Wharram, Doug Jarrett and Stan Mikita replied for Chicago. Originally it had been announced that Mikita's game misconduct Saturday in Montreal would keep him out of Sunday's game.

And while the leaders were jockeying for position, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs were extending shanks that are reaching alarming proportions.

Their 1-1 tie Sunday in New York left the Rangers winless in 10 games, while Leafs have won just one in seven.

Rod Gilbert's power play goal in the third period gave Rangers the split after Toronto rookie Wally Boyer had scored his second goal in as many games since being called up from Rochester.

Another Rochester import was not so fortunate. Defenceman Al Arbour, who came up with Boyer, will be out for two weeks with a knee injury. Arbour was replacing Bobby Baun, who has a knee injury.

Coach Punch Imlach said he will announce today who he will bring up from Rochester to replace Arbour.

LONDON (Reuters) — Wildlife officials, alarmed over Britain's declining frog population, have ordered a national frog census, it was disclosed Monday.

The census will be taken in conjunction with a scientific study of the effect of farm pesticides on Britain's wildlife. Hundred of a amateur naturalists will be recruited in the next five years to help compile a frog distribution map.

FIRST REAL SURVEY

"It will be the first real survey ever made," said Dr. Frank Perrin, a plant specialist assigned to the nature conservation's experimental station at Abbot's Ripton. He will collate the frog data.

He expressed the belief that the results would show a steady decrease in British frogs over the last 20 years. Perrin said modern agricultural methods had disturbed the places they liked to live, such as farm ponds and dikes.

"Some schoolboys have never seen a real frog," he added.

Talks to End Strike On Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks aimed at settling a three-month-old oil strike in British Columbia will resume today as the oilworkers union reimposes picket lines at British American Oil Co. plants.

Reg. Clements, B.C. government's chief conciliation officer, rescheduled the discussions at the request Monday of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (O.C.A.W.).

The only issue left unsettled is the company's seniority list. Union spokesmen say the company wants to break the present single provincial list into three separate areas.

The O.C.A.W. says such a break-down would be detrimental to the union members.

Meanwhile, pickets began to move Nov. 24.

Painting Missing --Briefly

An Indian painting by George Clute, worth $2,000, went missing briefly from Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

The painting was part of a shipment from Victoria to an exhibition in Toronto. The loss was discovered Saturday afternoon and there was an immediate alert.

However, sheepish Coach Lines officials came up with the painting Monday. It had been sent to Port Alberni by mistake.

Surplus Food Stall

Hungry Need Your Extra Food

Anyone with food in the house which they can find a way to call "surplus", can help the needy through Mrs. E. E. Harper.

Mrs. Harper operates the Surplus Food Stall which gives food parcels to persons on welfare.

"Often people have some extra preserves in their basement, or some vegetables from their summer garden that they can't use," Mrs. Harper says.

"We collect it and give it to people who can't afford to buy it."

Close to 60 Per Cent Majority

Fluoridation Vote Faces Recount in Oak Bay

The Oak Bay referendum on fluoridation is so close to the required 60 per cent majority in favor that an official recount has been set.

The first count after Saturday's record voting turnout showed a majority of 58.6 per cent in favor of fluoridation.

A check of the figures and re-count of the count showed the issue was within 18 votes of passing.

What happens if it fails after the recount is "up to council," Reeve Allan Cox said Monday.

UNANIMOUS

"Council was unanimous in wanting to put the matter to the voters, and personally all councillors were in favor of it, although council took no official stand," he said.

"But off hand I would say we wouldn't call a special referendum right away. It would more likely be included in next year's regular election.

AVOID CONTROVERSY

"If it's going to go through, I would hope it would get a good strong majority or be roundly defeated," he said. "That way we would avoid future controversy."

"We have to recognize the fact that the law requires a 60 per cent majority."

PRETTY TRICKY

Asked whether council would take an official, declared stand next year, Reeve Cox said: "There is nothing wrong with council coming out for fluoridation, but it's still a pretty tricky thing."

"Everyone on council said he was for fluoridation. You can't do much more than that."

VALID VIEWS

In hoping for a strong declaration by voters either way, the reeve said he recognized as valid the point of view that fluoridation "is not necessary for human life."

"I know a number of people who fluoridate their children's teeth, yet simply disagree with mass medication," he said.

Dr. Harold Carter, Oak Bay councillor who led Victoria's medical and dental fraternities in pushing for the measure, said the count showed a "wonderful majority."

"Next time it will go through."

IN THE LAST fluoridation referendum in Oak Bay in 1959, 42 per cent voted in favor.

Dr. Carter pointed out there was no compulsory waiting period for a further referendum on fluoridation. "You can hold a referendum on this any time."

EMOTIONAL CAMPAIGNS

Emotional campaigns against the measure were conducted by the Greater Victoria Individual Rights Association, a leader of which is Lydia Arsenault, former Social MIA with individualistic views on health and medication.

Cadets Set Pace

Thirty-nine healthy cadets from HMCS Venture set the pace Monday for the Red Cross blood donor clinic, which collected 595 pints.

Officials were "pretty happy" about it.

Objective for the four-day series of clinics is 1,000 pints—much of it to meet the expected holiday demand.

Next clinic will be held from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. today at Work Point Barracks. Others will be held Wednesday at the Legislative Buildings and Thursday at HMC Dockyard.

Gunman Escapes with $250

Store Owner Laughed But Bandit in Earnest

By GORDON DODD

Syd Archer, 53-year-old co-owner of the Lakehill food market at Quadra and Reynolds laughed Monday night when a gun-toting young man entered the store and told him, "This is a stick up."

His visitor added, "You had better not be a dead hero," and Mr. Archer decided it was no joke and the man meant business.

The bandit grabbed about $250 from the till and fled the store after ripping out telephone wires and telling the storekeeper, "Don't bother the cops for a few minutes."

As soon as the man left the store, however, Mr. Archer ran to another telephone and called Saanich police, who immediately threw up roadblocks.

SUSPECT QUIZZED

Late last night, police were questioning a suspect picked up shortly after the robbery.

Mr. Archer, who was alone in the store at the time, said the tall, medium-set gunman wore a white woollen cloth across the lower part of his face and dark glasses and was in his mid-30's.

The man also wore a dark engineer's cap, brown leather jacket and gloves.

It was the third hold-up in Greater Victoria in four days and the second time the bandit got away with money.

SILK-STOCKING

Friday night, a silk-stocking bandit with what appeared to be the barrel of a gun peering from his sweater sleeve, made off with $20 after holding up the woman owner of a Bay Street store.

Earlier, the same day, another young assailant handed a note to a saleswoman in a Government Street crafts shop which said "This is a holdup . . . have a gun on you" but fled empty-handed after having his bluff called.

AFTER CLOSING

Monday's holdup happened at 9:05 p.m., five minutes after the store closed.

Mr. Archer, however, followed his usual habit of putting stock away before locking the door.

"I was putting the meat away near the back of the store when he came up on me," said Mr. Archer.

The man was holding what Mr. Archer described as a revolver. "He said, 'This is a stick-up', but I just ignored him and laughed. I thought he was joking," Mr. Archer added.

It was then he was warned about becoming a "dead hero."

TOLD TO OPEN TILL

Mr. Archer said the man ordered him to open up the till and grabbed the entire contents except about $100 worth of cheques.

The ripped-up telephone was flung to the floor and the man turned in a northerly direction after leaving the store.

ANOTHER PHONE

Mr. Archer, who was by this time making his way to the other telephone at the rear of the store, said he did not hear the sound of a car starting and assumed the bandit had been on foot.

Second Hearing Scheduled On High-Rises

By JIM BRAHAN

The controversial Cadboro Bay high-rise issue will again go to a public hearing, Saanich council decided Monday night.

An application to have two Haro Road sites south of Sinclair—Mystic Springs property of 11 acres and another of 3.85 acres—re-zoned for high-rise and cluster type apartments is facing council.

Sherwood Oaks Estates Ltd. and Bay Meadows Estates Ltd. filed the application in October.

A former application for high-rise dwellings in the area was turned down when faced by fierce opposition of Cadboro Bay ratepayers.

HEARD REPORTS

Council last night listened to reports from Saanich advisory planning commission, Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, and letters from Cadboro Bay ratepayers on the issue.

Saanich advisory planners said the application should be rejected, because it was not the best land use for the particular area.

LOOK TO NEEDS

The Capital Region association urged the rezoning bid be rejected and said the future needs of the University of Victoria must be considered now and not in five years' time.

The administration of the university has not yet taken a stand on the issue. The board of governors is expected to examine it Dec. 20.

GIVE REASONS

Reasons given by the ratepayers in their letters asking council to turn down the application were:

● Let one high-rise in, and our quiet residential area will be gone in 10 years.

● Beaches and schools will become overcrowded.

● Property values will fall.

● High-rises are incompatible with private homes.

● There will be too many transient occupants.

● The view will be ruined.

MOVE REJECTED

A move by Coun. William Campbell to have the application rejected was defeated by a split vote, when he was supported by Coun. Leslie Passmore and Douglas Crosby.

Reeve Hugh Curtis, Edward Lam and Gregory Cook opposed the motion. Coun. Harold Todd was not at the meeting.

ONE OPPOSED

Council then decided to hold a public hearing on the issue. Coun. Campbell was the only one in opposition.

No date has been set for the hearing, but it is expected early in the new year.

Council also last night gave the green light to soap-box derby finals on Cloverdale hill the Sunday prior to the 1966 Victoria Day celebrations' parade.

SPEED-UP URGED

Coun. Cook urged a speed-up on the library agreement between Saanich and the Greater Victoria Library.

He also suggested that council decline to buy Rithet swamp if the opportunity arises.

He pointed out there is a chance the swamp will be ruined by the proposed housing development, and "will be of no use to anyone."

Toys by Ton Aid Colonist 500 Fund

Toys by the hundreds were given to Colonist 500 Fund by patrons of Kinsmen Giant Christmas Bingo in Memorial Arena Monday night and had a chance of winning turkeys. Toys will be auctioned at 8 p.m. Friday by Maynard & Sons Ltd. Until then they will take donations of toys at 733 Johnson between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. daily. Anyone with too many toys to carry may phone Reliable Transfer at 388-5733 and toys will be picked up. Colonist employees in photo are James O'Neill, Bert Weiss, Mike Bugslag, Ed Gent, Les Pickell and Joe Lindo. —(Bud Kinsman)

Cormorant Address

This month it is open Saturday, the 18th, starting at 11 a.m.

A phone call to Mrs. Harper at 685-8177 will bring the Elks around Saturday morning to pick up the food.

Cash donations will also be accepted and are tax-deductible. Any cash given to the stall is used by Mrs. Harper in bargain food hunting.

Lidgate-Wescott

Bride Carries Pink Roses

Petal-point sleeves and a ruffled neckline highlighted the floor-length gown of white tulle worn by Wendy Lynne Wescott Saturday afternoon when she became the bride of Donald Murray Lidgate. White gardenias and pearls held her four tier scalloped veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

In Oak Bay United Church, Rev. A. Calder heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Wescott, 1415 Blenheim Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Lidgate, 485 Fraser Street. Mr. Wescott gave his daughter in marriage.

Matron of honor Mrs. Thomas Harper wore a floor-length gown of blue tulle, styled with a bell-shaped skirt. Her headpiece was a bow of the same material as her dress.

Bridesmaid Miss Gay Wescott, the bride's sister, wore a gown identical to the matron of honor's dress, in rose-pink tulle. Both carried bouquets of pink and white carnations. Jewelry was black diamond necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Robert A. Cato was best man at the ceremony and guests were ushered by Nelson Morey.

Clare Potter proposed the toast to his niece at the reception in the Club Tango, where the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake which was flanked with pink roses and candles.

A cherry red suit and black accessories, complemented with a corsage of cherry red orchids, was the bride's choice for travelling on honeymoon to Seattle and Portland.

When they return, the couple will live at 845 Burdett Street.

IODE Gift For New School

A new member, Mrs. Josephine Kler, was inducted into membership at the December meeting of the Robert Burns McKicking Chapter, IODE.

Immediate past regent, Mrs. Edna Fox, has been asked to present the chapter's gift of the Children's Encyclopedia at the opening of the new Sasevics School at Milne's Landing today. IODE calendars have also been sent to all the chapter's adopted schools.

Pearl Barbour, Services convener, reported that clothing had been sent to the Municipal Chapter and that magazines had been mailed to the Northwest Territories. Christmas amenities will be taken on her next visit to a patient at the Veterans' Hospital.

Arrangements were made by Blind convener, Mrs. Kay Robson, for the packing and delivery of 11 Christmas hampers.

Miss Christine MacNab, World Affairs convener, outlined the significance of the British Crown as being a symbol of liberty, justice and equality for all men, uniting them in prestige and dignity.

The chapter's annual Christmas party will be held at the home of Mr. Owen Fowler, 2730 Thorpe Place, at 8 p.m. on Dec. 15.

Let this snow cloud warm you—toast the festive winter season with Snow Cloud Punch. It combines chocolate, coffee, eggs and instant pasteurized powdered skim milk.

Festive Season

Snow Cloud Punch For Holiday Party

There are many sounds and smells that let us know winter is here—the crackling fire in the fireplace, the pungent fresh scent of evergreens, the laughter of children. This is the season, too, of cooking and baking for festive holiday parties.

The next time you have a winter party, toast the occasion with cups of warming Snow Cloud Punch. This economical drink is a delicious blending of chocolate, coffee, eggs and instant pasteurized powdered skim milk. Grownups and children both love its delicate texture and flavour. It is a nourishing beverage, too, for instant pasteurized powdered skim milk contains all the calcium, phosphorus and protein of fresh whole milk.

SNOW CLOUD PUNCH
(Makes 24 servings)
Four cups instant pasteurized powdered skim milk; 2 cups chocolate syrup; 2 1/2 quarts coffee; 6 eggs, slightly beaten;

2 tablespoons vanilla; 2 1/2 cups whipped instant pasteurized powdered skim milk.

Stir instant pasteurized powdered skim milk and chocolate syrup into coffee in saucepan. Heat to just below a boil. Gradually add about 1 cup hot mixture to beaten eggs, stirring constantly. ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: I received tremendous response to the letter from the mother of the 15-year-old mental patient who committed her son to a state mental hospital. She wrote, "I know patients used to be treated like animals but I thought conditions had been improved." Her signature was "Faith Shattered."

I asked my readers if this letter could have come from THEIR state. Here is a sampling of the replies:

California: I am a former patient of a state mental hospital in California. It might surprise you but I am taking the side of the state. If that boy tried to escape twice, the third time he might have twisted the iron leg off a bed and split a nurse's head open.

I was put into solitary when I imagined the attendants were conspiring to kill me and hide my body.

I threw a full tray of food at a nurse and I was placed in a room with only a mattress on the floor. Now that I am well I understand things better. The employees of the California state hospital system deserve medals for their bravery and their kindness.—D.B.L.

North Carolina: I, too, had a teen-age son who was committed to a state mental hospital. I thought the attendants were mistreating him because he cried so much. I know now he only wanted to be taken home where he would get his own way. Today the boy is 21 and self-supporting. Our state hospital did for him what I, his mother, could never have done.—APPRECIATE.

Michigan: I have nothing but good to report about the Traverse City state hospital. I was a patient there for over a year. The food was good, the rooms were clean and the attendants, doctors and nurses were kind and thoughtful. I now hold a responsible position, drive my own car and am living proof that the mentally ill can be rehabilitated.—T.C.R.

North Dakota: I am a 16-year-old boy who has spent eight months in the state hospital. I just read the letter from the mother who complained about the way they treated her son. What did she expect? Color TV in every room maybe? A lot of kids who are mentally ill get away with murder at home. This doesn't help them to get well. I know because it was part of my life.—T.C.R.

her disturbed children and she hopes to do even better.—SEN. ABRAHAM BIRICOFF.

Indiana: After living next door to a 15-year-old homicidal boy whose parents took him out of a mental hospital because they didn't treat him like royalty, I have a word to say to all mothers of disturbed children: I heard the rifle shot that killed the boy's grandmother. I saw them carry the body out of the house. I recall how his mother kept saying he'd "outgrow his meanness."

Our late president was assassinated by a man whose mother didn't know he needed psychiatric care either and the world has suffered the consequences.—INDIANA.

New York: I was a patient in a New York state mental hospital and I swear to God a person couldn't get better treatment if he went to the fanciest private hospital in the country.—RECOVERED.

Illinois: My sister is a patient at the Illinois Psychiatric Institute. We hated to commit her because we heard state hospitals were snake pits. I can report that she has been treated beautifully and has shown remarkable improvement. I thank the Lord we live in Illinois.—PROUD.

Connecticut: "Faith Shattered" could not have written from our state. We operate two residential treatment programs for children up to 16, plus many child guidance clinics. We have excellent recreational facilities complete with swimming pool. Connecticut does very well by

Cronk-Cruikshank

Mainland Honeymoon For Newlyweds

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Carol Dickson became the bride of Sub-Lieut. Cecil Dennis Emile Cronk.

Rev. Dr. J. W. L. McLean read the marriage service for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cruikshank of 3585 Savannah Avenue, and the son of Mrs. Isabelle Cronk of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, and the late Mr. Cecil Cronk.

Baskets of yellow, gold and rust chrysanthemums banked the altar for the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. T. Davies sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white satin in princess style accented by embroidered lace down the front and along the edge of the full-length train which fell from a fabric rose at the waist. Her short veil was held by a headpiece of white roses. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, and wore the groom's gift of pearls.

Maid of honor, Miss Joyce Modrall, Miss Anne White, cousin of the bride and Mrs. Gail Bogle were gowned similarly in floor-length gold peacock sole with Empire waistline accented with a bow at the front. Headpieces were large roses made of matching peau de soie.

They carried star bouquets of red and gold daisy chrysanthemums.

Best man was Sub-Lieut. Ronald Copley and ushers were Sub-Lieutenants Richard Archer and Steve Arnold.

For the reception at Holyrood House, reception rooms were lit by candles, and tables were centred by gold chrysanthemums.

Going away, the bride changed into a peacock blue wool suit with grey fox collar and multi-blue feathered hat. Mr. and Mrs. Cronk were travelling to the Mainland. On returning, they will make their home in Victoria.

THE REWARD OF PATIENCE PLUS WHERE TO GO-GO

HARRY FIRTH

The Hair on the Head has finished growing, is dead and incapable of improvement, even by the roots.

But Can Be Damaged

Hair Roots are the size of a pin-point, have no digestive properties and cannot be nourished by so-called "Hair Foods" whatever. The average life of each individual hair is from 2 to 6 years, when they naturally drop out and are replaced by a new growth. The hair root selects the (Keratin) hairs substance, and color (Pigment) from Nature's source the Blood. Hair roots do not die. From the lack of activity, hair roots shrivel and are absorbed.

My exclusive method of "MANIPULATIVE THERAPY" is the answer to hair loss. Caused by a tightened state of the tissues. Causing insufficient supply of blood to the hair root. Receding at the temples, etc., is corrected; this treatment has given UNFAILING SATISFACTION for over 30 years in Victoria, B.C.

Many receive advice—only the wise profit by it.

Dear Mr. Firth:

This is just a few lines to express to you my appreciation for the very excellent job you have done towards restoring the vigour of my hair and now even some of the color. Last fall when you first started your massage, my hair was getting to a very poor condition and one side of my head very sore, but now following a great deal of patience, the whole situation has improved immeasurably. I am indeed grateful for your perseverance. Thank you.

Yours sincerely,
Lily.

Storms Snarl Ontario Communities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS (City reported six inches of snow—a record for Dec. 13. The old mark for the day was 2.4 inches in 1952. Two or three more inches were expected.

Only the London, Ont., area escaped the freezing rain which covered the remainder of the province. Five traffic deaths during the weekend were attributed to hazardous road conditions.

Hospital officials in Toronto said Monday about 200 persons were given treatment for bruises and broken bones. They said most were pedestrians who slipped and fell.

U-2 Spy Pilot Forced Down

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)—A spokesman at the airport in this northern B.C. community said Sunday a U.S. U-2 reconnaissance plane made a forced landing here when the pilot's supply of oxygen ran out.

Kyle Steele, manager of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., said the plane landed at the airport Saturday and the pilot waited overnight while a special supply of oxygen was flown in.

AMID SECRECY

He said the pilot took off Sunday to continue his journey. Information on the plane's flying plans was not available. Steele said landings by U.S. Air Force planes at the airport are fairly routine but this was the first to his knowledge by a U-2, a jet plane designed to fly in the thin atmosphere of 80,000 feet.

Airport manager George Potter said the pilot told him he was on a routine flight from his base in the U.S. to Alaska.

HEAVILY GUARDED
The plane was whisked into a hangar shortly after landing and was guarded overnight by RCMP and Department of Transport officials.

The pilot stayed in a downtown motel, his flight plans, maps and instructions locked in an airport safe. Repairs were made by a USAF crew flown in Sunday.

Girl's 'Find Me' Bottle Ends in Romantic Flight

WOMBELL, England (AP)—Marjorie Fowler, 21, plans to fly 10,000 miles to meet a prospective suitor who found her in a bottle.

Marjorie put a "please write me" message in a bottle she was packing at the glass factory where she works. John Vettler, 26, a pharmacist in Perth, Australia, found the message and replied.

The correspondence flourished and John suggested that Marjorie fly out to meet him. He forwarded $450 ($1,350) for the plane fare.

Said Marjorie: "We feel it would be better to meet each other now our letters are getting romantic."

Safe Trip for Santa Promised by NORAD

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy."—Francis P. Church.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—The North American Air Defence Command Monday put to rest some of the fears of the kiddies in the U.S. and Canada.

Jolly old St. Nick won't be shot down when he tries to fly into the country on his annual Christmas Eve trek.

NORAD, as it has done for the past nine years, will keep a close radar eye on Santa and his reindeer. NORAD is made up of 170,000 Canadian and U.S. military men at 400 sites throughout the continent.

This will mark the tenth year that NORAD has tracked Santa and given him safe passage through defence lines of Canada and the U.S.

But just so there won't be any slip-ups, NORAD officials said straight-faced that Santa had agreed to file a flight plan for his stop-fortnight trip.

OVER GREENLAND
A NORAD spokesman said Santa first would be sighted by its giant radars at Thule, Greenland, about noon, Dec. 24.

Seconds later his movements should be spotted at Clear, Alaska, and then by a Distant Early Warning line station in the Canadian Arctic.

As long as Santa follows his flight plan and doesn't take the path of a ballistic trajectory, travel at the 15,000 mph speed of an ICBM or the 18,000 mph speed of an orbiting satellite—and NORAD is assured he won't—he will have no problems.

At first his path will be given an orange track on the big charts at the NORAD centre. Orange indicates an unknown object.

But as more and more data comes in, NORAD officials will change the marking on Santa's flight to green—meaning "friendly-of special interest."

NORAD began tracking

Santa's flight in 1955 after a youngster trying to phone Santa Claus made a one-digit error in dialing and reached an unlisted number at the NORAD combat operations centre.

After talking to the child, the NORAD officer looked at the huge aircraft - track plotting board in the combat operations centre. The north pole was plainly marked and he decided no one would mind if the men kept their ears tuned for the sound of mythical sleigh bells.

Drink Coolers Being Sought

OTTAWA (CP)—The food and drug directorate is trying to find out whether any plastic drink coolers, said to contain contaminated water, are being marketed in Canada.

"I've just told our field products division to look into the matter," said Dr. R. A. Chapman, director of the health department branch, in an interview Monday.

BANNED IN U.S.

Sale of the water-filled plastic cubes and spheres imported from Hong Kong have been banned in six U.S. cities and three states.

Dr. Chapman said it isn't known yet whether any are being sold in Canada.

Because the coolers weren't being marketed as food, they weren't listed by customs.

SOME LEAK

They probably didn't come under the jurisdiction of the directorate but it intended to investigate to help provincial

Planned Apartment Opposed By Neighbors

At least three families are taking aim at a proposed garden apartment complex along Begbie Street.

One of the families told city council that an influx of children and teenage drivers will turn Begbie Street into "accident hill."

WROTE LETTERS
The families made their feelings known to council by letter. They said they will be present at a rezoning hearing at city council Thursday.

A letter from Walter and Eleanor Allan, who said they live across the street from the proposed development, said it would result in a "great danger to life and limb."

"Begbie Street is a direct route to Jubilee and Veterans' Hospitals, and sirens of emergency vehicles cannot be heard until they reach the crest of a hill at St. Barnabas Church Hall," the letter said.

A HAZARD
"Just imagine the hazard to children who have to cross Begbie Street to go to school."

It said the proposed 78-unit apartment complex "would attract families with teenagers and, as we all know, cars are the idols of teenagers."

"And it is a well known fact that this age group shows less concern for safety than mature drivers," it warned.

Newsmen Strike No 1964 Bonus,

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Employees of India's major news service, the Press Trust of India news agency, went on a 24-hour strike to back demands for payment of a bonus for 1964.

It was the first strike in the agency's history. General Manager K. S. Ramachandran said in a message to subscribers that the agency's budgetary position did not permit the bonus payment.

The steamer Surprise docked at Hope June 6, 1853, opening an era of river transportation for Cariboo-bound miners.

Patrols Clash, Five Killed

PHNOM PENH (Reuters)—The Cambodian Army said Monday two Cambodians and three Thais were killed Sunday when Thai armed forces crossed the border in the Sraong district of Oddermea province and clashed for 15 minutes with a Cambodian patrol.

Emphasizing that safe driving requires an unobstructed view of the road, a BCAA spokesman said Christmas tree buyers should never block the rear vision of the driver when attaching the tree to the car.

"With most American or Canadian cars," he said, "it is probably best to carry the tree in the trunk, and ensure the trunk lid is tied down."

The association recommends hauling Christmas trees in daylight hours, so other motorists can spot protruding branches.

If the tree extends beyond the length of the car, attach a red warning flag.

As a general rule, the BCAA warns against using the back seat for lugging purposes, unless the tree is unusually small.

It urges any motorist who plans to attach a tree to the top of the car to be certain it does not overhang the windshield or back window.

Gaglardi Agrees To Road Survey

By JOY HUNTLEY

Highways Minister Gaglardi agreed to an immediate survey of a bypass route of the Island Highway around the settled portion of Campbell River district.

But he did not promise the survey would lead to immediate construction of the route, a step demanded by 40 mothers from Campbell River when they carried placards to the legislative buildings in Victoria and met the minister Monday.

DAUGHTER KILLED

Among the group were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bordin, who lost their daughter in a road accident on the highway just south of the municipality this fall.

Truck Route Sought By Mothers

Their daughter was one of two children to die on the stretch recently.

Coun. Isobel Sandberg told the highways minister the council is unanimously in support of the bypass highway request. Mr. Gaglardi said he would give top priority to surveys, cost estimates, traffic counts, acquiring of access, and all preliminary work up to the point of construction.

But, on the demand for "immediate construction," Mr. Gaglardi said he has many other priorities from other parts of the province.

Comm. MLA Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said he is behind the mothers' efforts.

Mr. Campbell squashed the popular misconception in Campbell River that a survey has already been done on a by-pass route.

The group was led by Mrs. Sandra Baikie, who told Mr. Gaglardi "A total of 18 accidents has occurred between Oyster River and Campbell River this month."

Ratepayer Blasts View Royal Letter

A group of View Royal residents opposing township status are not interested in the View Royal area, a ratepayer spokesman said Monday night.

The group has circulated a letter calling for View Royal to vote "no" on Saturday's township plebiscite. The letter points out that the provincial government has not said "organize or else" as claimed in a circular distributed by township advocates.

The letter urges residents to stay as they are, in unorganized territory.

ULTERIOR MOTIVES

"I think these people have ulterior motives," said Garnet Bulmer, president of the ratepayers' association.

"They are motel or auto court owners whose major concern is to keep taxes as low as possible."

CIRCULATED

The letter is being circulated with copies of one from Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell.

Mr. Campbell says the question of town status for View Royal lies entirely with the electorate. "There is no legislation which can insist upon a change of status for an improvement district, which View Royal now is," the minister said.

NOT NECESSARY

Why organize a town? the letter to ratepayers asks. "With four municipal governments within four miles of city centre to serve 150,000 people it is obvious that another town is not necessary. Vancouver can manage the affairs of 500,000 people with one governing body."

The letter says statements that the government has said "organize or else" and "there are only two possible ways to organize" are wrong.

FOUR CHOICES

There are four choices: Form a town, amalgamate with Esquimalt, join with Colwood and Langford to form a district municipality, or remain as is.

CONSULTATION

"The panhandle area's petition to join Esquimalt does not become void if a town is formed. Should this area secede, the town would lose one-third of its revenue," says the letter. "We should stay as we are."

Experienced planners should be consulted before any change is made in the present status, cannot expect more from a town council than we are receiving. "Town sponsors admit their at present, then why create a proposed balance sheet is a new municipal council?" asks 'stay-as-we-are' budget. If we the letter?

On Trail Nine Months

Journey Nears End For Two Wagoners

HALIFAX (CP) — A covered wagon carrying two bearded pioneers is nearing the end of its 3,700-mile journey.

Cecil Rivers, 34, of Calgary, who has been travelling aboard the wagon for nine months, and Bill Stiff, 36, who joined Rivers in Fort William, Ont., will be given a civic welcome when they arrive here today.

The pair stopped for the night at Fletcher's Lake, about 15 miles north of here.

They will be met by mounted city police when they arrive and escorted to city hall where they will be welcomed by Mayor Charles A. Vaughan.

Mr. Rivers, an amateur writer and photographer, says he is making the trip to gather material for a film and books on Canada. He left Calgary April 25 in the wagon, a self-contained unit holding bedding and eating space for two men.

Mr. Stiff, a Port William transport driver, joined Mr. Rivers after another man dropped out.

The wagon, with three horses, covers about 20 miles a day.

The two plan to ship the wagon and horses back to Calgary and return home by train or truck before Christmas.

Robert P. Lane, supervisor in charge of the federal alcohol and tobacco tax unit, said the arrests followed tests made on purchases of "white lightning" by revenue agents.

Lane said the tests revealed almost all of the illegal whisky contained poisonous lead salts and some contained isopropyl alcohol (rubbing alcohol). The true alcohol content of the whisky tests averaged about 55 per cent.

The arrests climaxed the latest stage of "Operation Dry-Up," a federal campaign to rid Georgia of illegal liquor. Since Oct. 25, agents have destroyed almost 700 moonshine stills in 56 Georgia counties. There are 159 counties in the state.

Agents said the one-time weekly flow of 35,000 gallons of illegal whisky into Atlanta.

Aldergrove obtained its name from the fact the area boasted a heavy stand of alder in early days.

Revenuers Swoop Down

Moonshine Sellers Arrested in Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Federal and Georgia state revenue agents arrested 165 persons Monday in a massive sweep of the metropolitan area for illegal moonshine whisky sellers.

The raids, resulting from several weeks of undercover work and whisky purchases by agents, began before dawn. Most of the warrants were served by daylight.

Robert P. Lane, supervisor in charge of the federal alcohol and tobacco tax unit, said the arrests followed tests made on purchases of "white lightning" by revenue agents.

Lane said the tests revealed almost all of the illegal whisky contained poisonous lead salts and some contained isopropyl alcohol (rubbing al-

Golfers Dodging Cars

Off-Course Peril On Its Way Out?

Something may be done about off-course peril for golfers at Oak Bay.

E. V. B. Holmes, 1002 Government, suggested to the municipality's "B" committee the matter can be solved by strategic positioning of a crosswalk.

And the committee Monday night adopted the idea as a recommendation to council.

DANGEROUSLY CLOSE

Mr. Holmes said the present crosswalk at Beach Drive and Newport was only 130 feet from a corner on Beach Drive which cars are apt to round at high speeds.

On one occasion a vehicle descending the "golf club" hill ran into a group of golfers on the crossing, he said.

BUT STOPPED

But it stopped before it reached the other side of the Newport intersection.

Mr. Holmes, who said there were also young children living in the area, figured a crosswalk at the west side of Newport would give cars the extra time to stop if they were going too fast.

Bill Rathie Lobbies Here

Vancouver Mayor William Rathie came to Victoria Monday seeking a provincial government-financed ambulance service and more Vancouver cabaret licences.

He didn't get either. However, after meeting one-hour-and-40-minute with Attorney-General Bonner on the cabaret issue, Mayor Rathie said:

'MADE HEADWAY'
"I think we made a lot of headway toward a co-operative approach."

He wasn't so lucky on the ambulance cost business. He said he was given a "flat turnaround" by Health Minister Martin.

The Vancouver mayor arrived in Victoria with a five-man lobbying delegation. It consisted of Vancouver Aldermen Hugh Bird, Halford Wilson and Tom Campbell. Fifth man was Commissioner Lorne Ryan of Vancouver city council's board of administration.

WILL CO-OPERATE
Mayor Rathie said after his meeting with Mr. Bonner that the delegation promised to co-operate with the attorney-general's department in determining which cabarets should get liquor licences.

He said the delegation believes that more of the "decent, well operated cabarets" in Vancouver should be allowed these licences.

It was announced earlier that the Vancouver delegation would seek a three-man licensing board to replace Liquor Control Board Chairman Col. Donald McGugan.

AGREEABLE
But Mayor Rathie said after the attorney-general explained that Col. McGugan is already chairman of "a board of officials" which makes the rulings, he found himself in agreement with Mr. Bonner.

The delegation left Mr. Bonner's office at 1:05 p.m., skipped lunch, and hurried over to Health Minister Martin's office for a 1:30 p.m. appointment.

UNDER ECHIS
There they asked that ambulance service be brought under R.C. Hospital Insurance service coverage.

They were turned down. A similar plea was voiced to the cabinet two weeks ago by the executive council of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Mr. Bonner, who said he was pleased with his meeting with the delegation, said the Vancouver council agreed to clear up the definition of what constitutes a cabaret.

He said one of the biggest problems Vancouver faces is the bottle-under-the-table type of illicit semi-liquor operations.

Mr. Bonner said 24 of Vancouver's 47 cabarets have liquor licences now. The remainder, he said, have never applied for them.

He rejected earlier press reports which suggested a "licence everything" policy.

DENIES REFUSAL
Health Minister Martin denied he had turned down the request for ambulance financing.

"I said, 'You have come to the wrong place.'"

"The federal Hospital Insurance Act is very restrictive and no province in Canada can proceed in any direction without delation of the restrictions to do with ambulance services in that act."

Red Trawlers Dual Purpose?

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union is causing concern among Western defence organizations by using more and more of its merchant ships in a naval role, says Jane's Fighting Ships.

It says the United States, however, is still the world's greatest sea power and predicted that the Royal Navy, once the ruler of the waves, will cease to exist except as a minor force unless new vessels are built soon.

Japan is described as a re-emerging sea power in the Far East.

TRAWLERS EVERYWHERE

The authoritative British publication on the world's navies singles out Soviet trawlers, frequently accused by the West of carrying out spy operations off shore. It says the "ubiquitous" Russian fishing boats "seem to appear on every trade route and on every scene of naval activity."

The newly published 1965-66 edition, which came out Monday, says:

"There is no doubt that the U.S.S.R. regards her merchant shipping fleet not only as an essential element of the national economy at all times, but as a vital fourth arm of defence in emergencies."

ALL VEHICLES

"It is not only the growth of Soviet merchant shipping which is of some concern to the principal (maritime) powers. The chiefs of the NATO, SEATO and CENTO (Western defence) organizations are tending to think not specifically about the Soviet naval forces proper, but broadly about all the U.S.S.R.'s sea vehicles."

Jane's says the Soviet Navy had concentrated recently on production of missile-firing destroyers, anti-submarine frigates and nuclear-powered submarines.

It says the Soviet naval strength now is estimated at 22 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 35 nuclear powered submarines, 390 conventionally powered submarines, 100 frigates and 700 minesweepers.

Smaller Soviet craft include 250 escort and patrol vessels, 350 motor torpedo boats, 550 motor gunboats, 130 landing craft, 300 auxiliaries and 200 service vessels.

Newcomers Join Board

Voters returned two Sooke School Board trustees to office and elected two newcomers in Saturday's civic election.

Board chairman John Bartanus and newly-appointed trustee Ardiel Wickheim were returned in the Milne's Landing section of the school district.

They easily defeated Claude MacDonald, a retired accountant.

Another three-way contest for two seats in the Belmont sector saw incumbent Hermon Williams the loser.

New trustees are Fred J. Williams, a retired school principal, and Darvis W. Cook, a plywood mill worker.

Earlier, Dr. James Porten-

16,500 Peace Residents Shiver Through Outage

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Chilled residents of two north-eastern B.C. communities clustered around electric stoves for the second night Monday, waiting for gas to be restored to their unheated homes.

The temperatures dropped to zero in Dawson Creek and Peace Coulee as utility workers encountered trouble in restoring service following a break in a pipeline Sunday night.

Almost all the homes of the two communities, with a total population of about 16,500, are heated by natural gas from Peace River fields.

Residents were using everything electrical that would produce heat in an effort to keep warm.

Some even brought heaters from their cars into the house.

Misery was added to misery as circuit breakers in over-worked B.C. Hydro Power Authority facilities periodically opened and blacked out a few blocks.

Hydro linemen would rush to restore service as families sat chilled to the bone in headless homes.

Hydro authorities appealed to residents to use only necessary appliances.

A 30-foot section of the pipeline between Taylor, 22 miles to the north, and the two communities broke under the Kikatinaw River, 14 miles from here, Sunday night.

Westcoast Transmission Co. said it could bring in adequate gas from the Peace Coulee field in Alberta to satisfy the needs of the two communities. But it cannot do that until it capped the broken pipe.

Twice workers dug down 30 feet to the pipe in order to cap it. And twice their hole caved in. A second hole was started in firmer ground and utility spokesmen expressed hope the line would be capped by 8 p.m. or 9 p.m.

Radio station CJDC here stayed open all Sunday night, broadcasting the latest developments, which led to one unhappy result.

A family, hearing the warning, shut down everything and went to bed, getting up to a frigid house in the morning. It was quite unnecessary — the house used bottled gas for fuel.

Some 2 per cent of the homes in Dawson Creek received gas continually through emergency facilities. The rest of the community and all of Peace Coulee did without.

Most of the 15,000 residents here and 1,500 in nearby Peace Coulee stayed home Friday.

They dressed in warm clothing and huddled around electric heating appliances as they waited for gas to flow back to furnaces.

The 10 schools here and Peace Coulee's lone school were closed as were most businesses.

St. Joseph's Hospital here switched over to emergency oil heaters but at Peace Coulee hospital officials had to install two oil burners normally used to warm up aircraft.

Girl Tells Policewoman

Bloody Axe Slaying 'Was an Accident'

HYDE, England (Reuters) — A 23-year-old blonde, accused with her boyfriend of a double murder, told police the death of one of the alleged victims was an accident, a magistrate's court was told Monday.

The defendant, Esther Myra Hindley, is charged with Ian Brady, 27, of murdering Edward Evans, 17, and Lesley Ann Downey, 10, and of harboring Brady knowing he had killed another boy, John Kilbride, 12, in what has become known as the murders-on-the-moors case.

SHALLOW GRAVES

The bodies of Lesley Ann Downey and John Kilbride were found in shallow graves on lonely Saddleworth Moor near here during a massive police hunt last month.

The hunt is likely to be resumed when freezing conditions abate next spring.

QUESTIONED GUILTY

Policewoman Margaret Campion told the court, which is considering whether Brady and Miss Hindley should be committed for trial in a higher court on murder charges, that she had questioned the girl about how Evans was bludgeoned with an axe and strangled with a cord.

The policewoman testified that Miss Hindley had said Evans was killed after an argument and that her brother-in-law, David Smith, who had told the court he watched Brady murder Evans, was a liar.

'I DIDN'T DO IT'

The policewoman said the girl told her:

"All I am saying is that I didn't do it, and Ian didn't do it. We are involved in something we didn't do. . . . What happened . . . was an accident. It should never have happened."

A pathologist, Dr. Charles Arthur St. Hill, said he found 14 lacerations on Evans' scalp, right cheek and ear, which could have been made by an axe produced in court as the murder weapon.

The hearing continues.

The pledge is: "I will stand my tree in water and keep the container well filled every day. I will see that the tree lights have no broken or bare wires, or loose sockets. When we go to bed or leave the house, the lights will be turned off."

Indians Get Planner

OTTAWA (CP) — The Civil Service Commission has appointed Walter Rudnicki, 40, a Winnipeg-born social worker, to fill the newly-created post of director of planning for the Indian Affairs Department.

The announcement was announced Monday by Citizenship Minister Nicholson, whose department includes Indian Affairs.

Mr. Rudnicki has been chief of the branch's social programs division since 1963. He was formerly in charge of northern welfare services for the northern affairs department.

Holder of a masters degree in social work from the University of British Columbia, Mr. Rudnicki will prepare long-term plans for Indian Affairs activities in his new role.

Resulting programs are expected to help the branch in achieving greater independence for the Indian and increasing his participation in the economy and society, Mr. Nicholson said.

Yugoslavia 'Upset' By Large Exodus

BELGRADE (AP) — Home-trained doctors, architects, engineers and technicians are joining unskilled labor in an unprecedented exodus out of Yugoslavia, seeking their fortunes in capitalist lands.

Yugoslavia has become the first Communist country in Marxist history to permit worker emigration.

But President Tito's government also is growing increasingly disturbed at the way the emigration is going and plans soon to bring it under closer control.

HAPPY

Despite some ideological embarrassment the government is happy about the outflow of ordinary labor. Construction workers and others who find jobs outside the country ease unemployment pressure at home, send back desperately needed hard currency from abroad and bring back automobiles and other major consumer items in short supply in Yugoslavia.

What disturbs the government is that so many professionals and technicians, often educated at government expense in Yugoslavia, leave the country to work elsewhere.

200,000 ABROAD

As of now 200,000 Yugoslavs are reported working abroad—more than 120,000 in West Germany, 40,000 in France, 20,000 in Austria, 15,000 in Sweden. Most are unskilled and semi-skilled workers.

Many of those going abroad can't find jobs at home.

The government is upset, however, by doctors and engineers, for example, who get their education in Yugoslavia then go to Hamburg or Paris rather than to the Yugoslav villages where their skills are needed.

Mothers.
Now an Effective
Cough Syrup That Children Love to Take Place your trust in Jack & Jill Cough Syrup with added Vitamin C. Works wonders—children love it.

One of the most disturbing ailments a mother can have is her child's coughing at night. A nagging cough from a cold causes so much trouble when it's irritating a child. The throat membranes of children are more sensitive, more easily hurt.

This is why W. K. Backus spent years perfecting his special cough syrup for children. Via him and his family have been well rewarded. Today, Jack & Jill Cough Syrup helps more children's coughs than any other product in Canada. There are a number of very good reasons why Jack & Jill Cough Syrup is preferred by most Canadian Mothers.

The carefully selected ingredients in Jack & Jill Cough Syrup are double-acting. They relieve the irritation that causes so much trouble, and they relieve irritated throat membranes, making it easier for the child to swallow. Jack & Jill means the irritation and loss of your child's rest can be stopped.

Children like Jack & Jill. The mild, white, cherry taste gives the cough syrup the pleasant flavor that children like so well. Jack & Jill Cough Syrup is both a treat and a treatment. And every dose of Jack & Jill contains added Vitamin C... the vitamin children specially need when they are feverish.

Jack & Jill Cough Syrup for children is sold everywhere. Ask for it by name.

In Yarmouth Castle Disaster

Faulty Ventilator? Ship's Fire Cause?

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard inquiry may be close to a breakthrough in its search for the origin of the disastrous Yarmouth Castle fire.

It took almost three weeks of testimony to get the first glimmer of a possible cause for the fire which struck the Canadian-owned cruise ship, Nov. 13, and left 90 dead. The board of inquiry now is in recess to study 1,800 pages of testimony from 45 witnesses.

Until Lloyd Lamm, a retired electrician and volunteer fireman from Pompano Beach, Fla., gave evidence, the sources of the fire had posed a riddle. Witness after witness pinned its origin to Room 610—a room where there was nothing to burn.

But Lamm, with a fireman's instinct, did something different from the rest. He left his Room 62A, in search of the smoke origin. He went on past 610, still smelling smoke strongly, and climbed the first flight of the forward stairway to the promenade deck.

There he put his ear to the wall and heard flames crackling inside.

NEXT TO SHAFT

This wall, testimony showed, was located beside the main galley's ventilator trunk or shaft. On the deck below, this shaft passed room 610, where the first actual fire was discovered.

Since the galley was inspected by the chief engineer shortly after smoke was discovered and found normal, Lamm's testimony focuses suspicion on a flue fire that may have gained headway unseen.

Grease or other inflammable substances could have collected in the shaft, although it presumably was cleaned when the ship was in drydock a month before the disaster.

SUPPORTS STORY

Supporting Lamm's theory was the testimony of the third engineer, who first detected smoke at his post deep in the ship.

But the smoke came from the deck, where it was wafted down by a blower ventilator so sensitive "you could smell the perfume of a lady walking by."

The kitchen ventilator shaft led out on deck between the stack and the bridge and for-

Movies Of U.S. Blasted

OTTAWA (CP)—Hollywood's influence over Canadian moviegoers came under fire Monday as the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism opened its final public hearing.

Two French-language groups urged the federal government to encourage the growth of a bicultural domestic film industry through subsidies, loans, tax incentives and ownership controls.

L'Association Canadienne des Educateurs de Langue Française, a group of French-speaking teachers, school trustees and educationists, said Canada must combat the cultural and economic invasion from Hollywood.

SAFEGUARD
"To safeguard our national identity and meet the cultural needs of the public," the association urged legislation that requires movie houses to be owned by Canadians, similar to requirements for the broadcasting and publishing fields.

The brief said 80 per cent of the movies shown in Canada are American productions and most large theatres are owned by American chains.

RECOMMENDS AID
The group recommended federal aid and provincial tax relief to stimulate the production of feature and educational films both by private industry and National Film Board.

The film committee of the Catholic Commission on Mass Media urged federal grants and sales tax exemptions for foreign films that would be released simultaneously in the English and French versions, with dubbed dialogue or sub-titles.

DUBBED ENGLISH
The committee said it is abnormal and humiliating that most movies shown in Quebec are in English. This was a powerful instrument of Anglicization in a French-Canadian area. Even French films were shown in Quebec with dubbed English.

Members of the royal commission asked spokesmen for the two French-speaking groups whether Canadian feature films would attract sufficiently-large audiences to be successful.

BIG MARKET
Rev. Jacques Guineau, secretary of the Catholic Film Committee, said a big market could be developed for Canadian films if good screen writers and good story subjects were found.

All 36 commissioners are taking part in the Ottawa hearing the last of 12 held across Canada this year.

'Unconscious' Driver Acquitted by Court

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — A man who was given a breath analysis test while unconscious in hospital three hours after a car crash had been acquitted Monday on a charge of drunken driving after the result of the test was admitted as evidence.

Magistrate Kenneth Langdon said it was with great reluctance that he dismissed the charge against Dieter Shack, 40, of Port Credit. Milton is 30 miles west of Toronto.

Priests Not Happy

Girls' Dances Stir Up Tribal Trouble

RED CLIFFS, Wis. (AP) — Two girls in the domestic peace corps apparently have won their battle to return to work at an Indian reservation where their activities stirred up tribal trouble and got them banned. But the controversy over the work of the Volunteers in Service to America VISTA program spread to a second reservation where a Roman Catholic priest said: "We don't need any body from the outside just to hold dances."

Judy Rothman, 20, of University City, Mo., and Jill Hunt, 22, of Kewanee, Ill., have been barred for a week by the tribal council of the Red Cliff Indian reservation. The dispute there as well as at the second reservation swirled around youth clubs and dances organized by VISTA workers.

Thomas Williamson, a VISTA supporter and former social worker for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, said however, that five of the nine council members had signed a petition asking that the council reverse its decision at a meeting tonight.

Rev. Lucius Hellstern, Roman Catholic priest for the reservation, charged the co-eds had disrupted the Indian community and said: "They're certainly not doing anybody any good."

At nearby Bad River Indian reservation, Rev. Damian Hachenbach criticized three VISTA workers who organized dances there and said:

"If they come in with constructive programs to help the Indians live a better life, I would give them my full support and help them in every way I could. But they haven't done anything like that."

Almost all of the 300 Chippewa Indians in the Red Cliff remote, snowbound areas along the 900 Chippewas at Lake Superior in extreme north-Bad River are Catholics. The northern Wisconsin.

Garden Notes

Why Kill Yourself?

By M. V. CHESNUT

To the real garden-lover, gardening isn't work at all, but a sheer joy, and labor-saving devices don't have too much appeal. Even digging over the vegetable plot—probably the most strenuous of all our garden chores—brings its own particular satisfactions, for the lovely earthy smell of newly-turned soil is a delight in itself. Pride of craftsmanship has a part, too, for the workmanlike appearance of a neatly dug piece of ground is a joy to behold.

There comes a time, though, when advancing years compel the gardener to devise ways and means of cutting down on the more arduous chores of garden maintenance. Fortunately, it is quite possible to have and keep up a lovely garden without too much physical exertion.

Two points are important in designing the labor-saving garden: Avoid plants which require much digging and frequent replanting, and concentrate on a few number of kinds rather than trying to grow everything in the seed and nursery catalogues.

When forget-me-nots are allowed to go their own way, and seed themselves, the whole plot can become a rhapsody in blue, and all without any stooping or bending whatever. With a canopy of apple blossom above, it provides a color combination unparalleled in nature.

I don't think any of us, with our constant fussing, give our hardy annuals and biennials enough opportunity to seed themselves and spread in a natural way. A few which love to reproduce themselves in this way are the double daisies, California poppies, calendulas, cornflowers, linaria, wallflowers, and the lovely little Copenhagen bluebell, Phacelia campanularia.

For instance, it is quite possible to turn a backyard plot into a small fruit orchard, and with the modern dwarf trees, harvesting and pruning can be done easily and without ladders. The soil around the trees can be grassed over, and bulbs naturalized in groups. Crocuses never look better than when growing in colonies in turf, and a few daffs and narcissus soon increase into imposing groups if left undisturbed. Grape hyacinths and scillas—and our native Camassia lily—will literally carpet the grass in a few years, and there is no lovelier sight than an orchard in full bloom with this groundwork of clear blue.

Roses can be a lot of work if you set out to grow prize-winning flowers, but if you can train yourself to regard them as shrubs rather than flowers, their care becomes much less strenuous. Prune them lightly as you would any other shrub, and they require no more care than a mock orange or a forsythia. You get more flowers, too, although they won't be in the prize-winning class.

An acquaintance of mine who will be 80 years old in a few months maintains a bed of roses which is the talk of his neighborhood, and all he does in the way of pruning is to shorten the strong, vigorous shoots by about a foot in early March, and to cut away any dead or weak growth. His bushes have been in the same place for 12 years now, and they stand about 5 feet tall, some with stems two inches thick at the base.

When It Comes to Gifts, Says ERMA BOMBECK—

My Man's Wise—And Cheap

If I wanted one of those rare husbands who "surprises" his wife with gifts of jewelry, furs and impractical absurdities, I should have shopped around for a few more years. (But you know how it is. At 21 we are all inclined to panic!)

At any rate, I drew a gift-giver who is wise, reasonable, sensible, practical and predictable. He is also cheap.

During the course of the year if I happen to mention my need for a meat thermometer or lubricating oil for my hair clippers, in all probability I will find them in my Christmas stocking.

If I should mention my sweeper bags are running low or we could use another 50 pounds of fertilizer in the flower beds, I get them stacked at my plate on my birthday.

It is not unreasonable to assume if I were to indicate an interest in polo score cards I would certainly get them wrapped as a gift. (I remember my enthusiasm for twin girls at the beach last summer, and frankly I'm holding my breath.)

Some men are impulsive. They go for the wicked nightgowns, heady perfumes, gaudy jewelry and vulgar fur route.

My husband has given way to "crazy-mad impulsiveness" on three occasions.

The first time was in 1950 when he brought me a small pot of parsley. (He thought it was house fern, so I gave him points for intent.)

Again in 1963, he went out of character when he dropped a doll with orange hair in my lap. There was no explanation with this one. I figured if he was guilty of some hanky panky, it couldn't have been much if a $1 doll could square it.

Last week, he "lost control of himself" again by presenting me with a red and white-checked coffee mug. It had a name lettered on it... "FRED."

Now I don't pretend to be a sex-symbol or anything, but I always thought of myself as more female than Fred. I mentioned this to him rather delicately. "Don't you have me confused with a YMCA weight lifter?"

"No," he said logically. "You think they're going to manufacture mugs on an assembly-line basis with a rat name like Erma? How many do you think they'd sell? Two? Maybe three and then half of those would be spelled with an L." I saw his logic.

My image is moulting for good. I know that now. (The kids do my Christmas shopping in a hardware store.) But when things get really bad, I try to think of the year my brother-in-law visited Rome and returned with religious gifts for everyone... but me. He gave me a bottle of "My Sin" perfume. It was the nicest thing anyone had ever said to me.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

French Bogart In Love

NEW YORK (NANA)—The report in Paris is that Jean Paul Belmondo has separated from his wife, and that he wants a divorce to marry Ursula Andress who is also separated from her husband, John Derek, and also planning a divorce. This information was given me by a close friend of Belmondo's, now in this country. Jean Paul is the biggest star in France today. He has the image of a French Bogart. He used to be a boxer. "The French are proud that their national film hero is in love with Andress," I was told, which I thought was a bit far-fetched, until Ursula Andress told me, "Ursula isn't a bit like she appears in her films. Also, she has the best figure in the world. In Europe she is a very important star."

Brigitte Bardot was offered the female lead in Sean Connery's next 007 picture, On Her Majesty's Secret Service. "I'll accept," quipped Brigitte, "if I can play James Bond." ... But Gert "Goldfinger" Frobe is quite happy to play the villain again. He will also be the heavy, and heavy is right—he must be somewhere near 250 pounds—in an upcoming sequel to Rifkin.

London's David Lewis had a good story about Frobe who makes no bones about admitting he was a Nazi in Germany and Austria during the war. While he was fighting as a corporal, he hid a Jewish woman in his Viennese apartment for three years. If she had been discovered, Gert would have been shot.

Actually Kim Novak's back is not broken but she will have to wear a brace for a long time after she is up and around. This could help her marriage. Not the brace, but the fact that husband Richard Johnson will have to be the breadwinner. The man always should be.

All sorts of hanky-panky went on in Africa during the filming of Edward G. Robinson's Sammy Going South. Not with Eddie, of course. He is far too dignified for tricky games. It was between the producers and the African emsors. Now there is a lawsuit in London, but it is much too involved to explain. All I hope is that with so much back-scene maneuvering at least the film is a success. I don't believe it is.

Before blonde beauty Elke Sommer married writer Joe Hyams, he followed her to Europe whenever she made a movie there which was all the time. Now that Joe is a producer, and planning to make Belmondo in Europe next summer, it will be Elke who will follow Joe to Europe. When I heard the title I wondered if it was to do with the medicine for tummy trouble! It is about an outrageous Don Juan, female gender, of the 16th century. It would make things cozy all around if Elke landed the role. And in spite of a "no" I received, she might.

Winning an Oscar hasn't done very much for that marvelous actress, Lila Kedrova. If you remember, she gave one of the all time performances in Zorba the Greek. But hasn't done anything since, on the screen. Her brief appearance in High Wind in Jamaica, also with Anthony Quinn, was made before the awards last April. Lila was to have starred in a Chekov play for Joe Levine on Broadway. But that has been cancelled.

One girl's illness is one man's Christmas vacation with his family in Switzerland. And I do mean David Niven's. When Kim Novak's bad back caused her to be replaced in the almost finished 13, by Deborah Kerr, it meant another eight weeks of filming, which in turn meant the postponement to February of David's next movie, Ice Station Zebra. (It should have started this month—in Hollywood.) So David can join his family in Switzerland for the holidays. Ditto for Debbie who lives a yodel away from David. She will earn a nice piece of change for the unexpected role.

JACK SMITH Follows Expert's Advice

Be Glad You're Tense!

My favorite school of psychology is the one that urges us to turn our minor "handicaps" to profit.

The high priests of these faiths are always writing books with peremptory titles: Live A Normal Life with Knock Knees. Be Glad You're Pigeon Toed! Long Distance Running for the Heart Patient.

A few years ago neurosis was popular with these fellows. They ground out whole shelves of volumes such as Fun With Neurosis, Neurotic? How Lucky Can You Get? or Wedded Bliss for the Neurotic Husband and Wife.

I read all of a dozen of these but they all did was make me more neurotic.

We now seem to be in the season for being glad we're tense. I am tense enough, but I have always thought of it as a bother. Some morning I'm too tense to ride the bus. When the bus rolls up and the air brakes go ssssh I fly to pieces. I have to wait for the next bus.

Now they say I can put this tension to work.

"Tension is perfectly normal," says Dr. Charles Clay Dahlberg, a psychiatrist. "If you didn't have it, you'd become nothing but a great big blob. The important thing is to make your tensions work for you!"

Before you can put your tension to work, though, you have to cut it down to manageable size, says the doctor. Eat a sweet; have a good cry; buy a new hat; work a crossword puzzle.

Fat lot of help that is to me. I never eat sweets. They aren't good for my teeth. I'm too old to cry. I can't wear a hat; my head is the wrong shape.

As for working a crossword puzzle, when I'm really tense I could no more print a word in one of those little bitty squares than an orangutan could play a waltz on a flute.

"Do something," advises Dr. Dahlberg. "Make a decision. Act."

Last night I decided to act. When I got home my tensions were pulling me taut in every direction. I felt like a spider web.

"Where's the spackle?" I asked my wife.

"Spackle?"

"Yes, Spackle. I'm going to spackle that crack in the bedroom ceiling. Time I got after it."

"You bought the spackle to do that job," she said. "at least two years ago. I have no idea where it is."

I had made my decision and I was thwarted. That naturally made me tenser than ever. I decided to risk a sweet, to hell with my teeth.

"Have me got any milk chocolate?" I asked.

She didn't even answer. She just stared at me.

I had tried action and I had tried sweets. There was only one thing left to do.

I sat down, twitching, while she mixed the drinks.

Woman Killed In Jet Crash

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—A private twin-engine jet plane with nine persons aboard failed to get airborne on a takeoff Sunday night and crashed into a cable drum. The co-pilot, a West German woman, was killed and the others suffered minor injuries.

Orchestra Blossoms At Royal Theatre

By WILLIAM THOMAS

It seems to be an accepted principle of gardening that vigorous pruning produces a healthy and beautiful blossom. This principle seems to apply equally to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

At least on the basis of the Sunday afternoon performance at the Royal Theatre.

The orchestra was pruned to its essentials for Mozart's Jupiter symphony and the result was delightful.

CRISP AND CLEAR

The violins lost the fuzzy sound sound usually characteristic of their ensemble playing and came through crisp and clear. But it is the cello section that the fullest credit must go.

For the first time this season Hans Siegrist seems to have at his disposal a section that is competent to play the music on the stands. It was a notable afternoon for this alone.

LEADS LIFE

There is no doubt the youth of the smaller violin section lent the music an enthusiasm the playing of the full orchestra lacks.

Alas, poor Bach did not fare as well. His suite in D-major, which opened the concert with the full orchestra was clumsily played.

It lacked precision and delicacy. The second movement—probably best known as a violin solo in the Wilhelmj arrangement, as Air on a G string—was a burlesque.

The music plodded on and on as the orchestra insisted on equating the slow and moving passages with mere tedium. They can do better than this.

Bach has a melodic simplicity that is enhanced by the pace of the music. This pace is sustained by a pizzicato on the bass strings.

BACH SUFFERED

Unhappily this section of the string choir was not as positive as it might have been and the Bach suffered for need of it.

The Telemann double concerto for violin and cello was billed as the major attraction of the afternoon, despite its brevity. The rarely-played work was nonetheless interesting.

Otto-Werner Mueller has added this work to the symphony's repertoire, with his own orchestration, so perhaps we will be allowed to hear it again.

GOOD APPROACH

Concertmaster Jean Angers and principal cellist Hans Siegrist offered a competent if somewhat pedestrian approach to the music.

Unlike wine, music does not improve for being bottled up. It takes frequent pouring to reach maturity. We should hear the Telemann again soon so that both the listeners and the musicians can learn to enjoy it.

It is always galling to admit a mistake but honesty demands it. On a number of occasions I have suggested Victoria would like to hear the works of a modern composer included in a concert.

AUDIENCE CRITICIZED

Mr. Mueller obliged with Paul Hindemith's Symphonic Metamorphoses of themes by von Weber. The music was excellent and the orchestra handled the work in fine style. But many of the sparsely house got up and walked out, some even having the ill grace to wander out while the orchestra was playing. The musicians deserve better manners than this, particularly when they have put in a great effort to tackle a difficult work like the Hindemith.

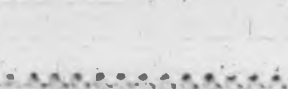

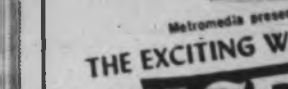

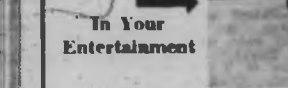

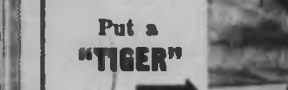

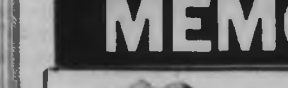

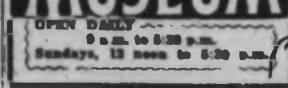

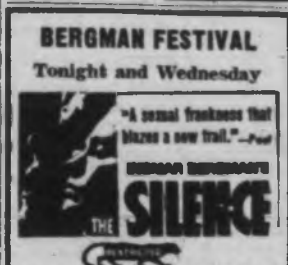

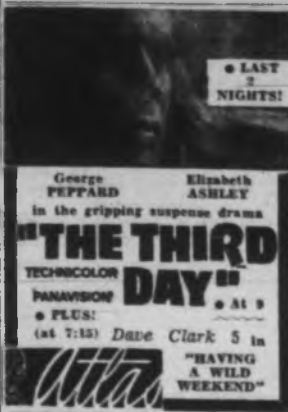

Through the perversion of human nature, one of the more stimulating and interesting concerts of the season did not inspire the response it should have done.

The next pair of concerts, Jan. 16 and 17, will be all Beethoven. It will be interesting to see if the house is packed, for the pundits insist Victoria is a "Beethoven town."

Soviets Back Indian Mill

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The Soviet Union Monday presented India with the plans for a 4,000,000-ton steel plant which will be the largest in southern Asia. It will be financed with a 12-year Soviet loan of 1,000,000,000 rupees (about $120,000,000) at 2 1/2 per cent annual interest.

To Shrink

TORONTO (CP) — Inflation will probably be the most serious single economic headache confronting Canadians in the year ahead, says H. B. Style, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

He says in a year-end statement that because of high employment and a skilled labor shortage in some areas there will probably be continuing pressure on both wages and prices.

If this situation is not held in check, it will tend to "inhibit our competitive ability both at home and abroad and, can rapidly take the gift off the gingerbread for many Canadians."

Mr. Style notes that in 1965 for the first time, the value of goods and services produced by Canadians exceeded $50,000,000,000.

The increase in the size of the gross national product would be about nine per cent, although higher prices would cut it in real terms to about six per cent.

One of the most gratifying achievements during the year was the rate of creating new jobs—about 250,000—dropping unemployment to its lowest level in a decade.

"Continuing expansion through 1966 should ensure a repeat performance in this field, with a further potential increase of around 200,000 new jobs."

Too Many Stoppages

'Restrain Labor'

Urges

Builders' Group

The Vancouver Construction

Association has called for tighter provincial government control of trade union activities.

It made the demand Monday in a brief submitted to the provincial cabinet.

The Association says its demands were sparked by numerous work stoppages plaguing the industry in recent months.

Cabinet was told that two of the most common ways in which the law was flouted were through use of mystery pickets and mysterious illnesses that affect large numbers of workmen.

Delegates said much of the trouble was caused by arguments between trade unions over which craft should do certain work.

They said the industry is also hit by demands from workmen for increased benefits during periods when collective agreements are still in effect.

"We fully support the free enterprise system," the brief said.

"However, there should be an effort to create an environment of restraint by all parties to ensure that the mistakes of the past will not be repeated."

It recommended:

• The Trade Unions Act be amended to confine picketing by a trade union to the employer's place of business or the actual premises where employees have voted for a strike.

• Legislation providing for the final settlement of any dispute not resolved in collective bargaining, by a court, commissioner or arbitrator.

• Passage of legislation for compulsory joint trustee management of union-negotiated health, welfare and pension plans.

Such legislation would prohibit a union from fulfilling the role of administrator of such plans. It would also require the union to disclose information about these plans, including annual financial statements.

• Amend the Trade Unions Act to require pickets to have in their possession written authorization by their union officials allowing them to picket a strike-bound office or plant.

Campbell Blames Civic Leaders

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Monday that Saturday's hospital financing referendum went down the drain because it was opposed all the way by Greater Victoria's municipal leaders.

How could civic leaders be in disagreement when he met behind closed doors with mayor and reeves of Greater Victoria and representatives of nearby areas to plan the regional board's functions.

"They were never in support of the addition of the hospital function to the regional board," Mr. Campbell said.

As a result, the referendum "did not get positive support from municipal leaders" and it did not get enough votes to pass.

Mr. Campbell explained what had happened when he met behind closed doors with mayor and reeves of Greater Victoria and representatives of nearby areas to plan the regional board's functions.

Municipal leaders generally agreed that the new board should look after such problems as regional parks, a regional sewer study and uniform control of sale of fireworks, he said.

They did not want the hospital function to be included.

The municipal affairs minister had established a policy that no other function would be added to the regional board unless there was a mutual agreement among the participants.

This announcement, said Mr. Campbell, meant "there would be an increasing need for hospitals here."

He therefore went against the policy which he had established, and called the mayor, reeves and representatives together for a meeting on Oct. 4, at which time he said he intended to include administration of hospital services.

No-War Pledge

Pakistan Makes Peace Bid

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan Monday offered to sign a "no war pledge" with India in an attempt to bring lasting peace to the Asian subcontinent.

Ayub made the dramatic offer in a remarkably short address before the 117-member General Assembly. At the same time, Ayub demanded that India "honor" a commitment to hold a plebiscite to settle the future of the disputed area of Kashmir.

The Indian delegation heard Ayub's words but failed to join in the burst of applause that greeted the Pakistani president when he concluded his address.

Noting that India and Pakistan "cannot afford to live in a state of tension," Ayub said a "way must be found out of this vicious circle" of conflict that has embroiled the two Asian powers for two decades.

"For my part," he said, "I make this offer: 'Let India and Pakistan sign a no-war pledge' and 'let us also agree to settle all disputes through negotiation or mediation.'"

Ayub attempted to bypass India's insistence that the future of Kashmir has long been

Britain, Ireland Free Trade

LONDON (Reuters)—A free-trade agreement between Britain and Ireland was reached at talks in London, it was officially announced Monday night.

The agreement probably will be signed today.

The announcement came after a round of talks lasting until after midnight.

Prime ministers of the two countries, Harold Wilson and Sean Lemass, led the negotiations on the Anglo-Irish free trade agreement.

The two-nation free trade area would boost sales of Irish farm products to Britain and of British manufactured goods to Ireland.

Under the agreement Ireland, a traditional food supplier to Britain, would step up its shipments of meat, dairy products and livestock. In return it would reduce import duties on British industrial items.

Quarantine Of North Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Republicans urged President Johnson Monday to apply against North Viet Nam the kind of quarantine the late president John F. Kennedy used against Cuba in the 1962 missile crisis.

A statement issued what it called "the inadequacy of Johnson's leadership in fighting the Southeast Asia war."

Test Freedman Report

Trainmen Will Demand Revolutionary Proposals

OTTAWA (CPI)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (BRT) is scheduled to open contract negotiations with the CNR Thursday in what will be the first test of revolutionary proposals made last week by the Freedman inquiry into CNR crew run-throughs.

W. P. Kelly, BRT vice-president, said in an interview Monday the brotherhood's negotiators intend to make a bargain-issuing issue of Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman's recommendation that the CNR negotiate with its unions on new working conditions brought about by technological change.

The Freedman report said there is an injustice in present labor laws, under which unions are helpless against such changes introduced while a collective agreement is in force. He recommended the law be changed and specifically urged the CNR to accept the new principle voluntarily.

Mr. Kelly said the BRT demands, served on the major railways last month before the Freedman report was made public, include the introduction of a contract clause providing that "no material change in conditions of employment" will be introduced without union-management negotiations.

A similar item was contained in the demands made by the union two years ago. It was later set aside during bargaining which led to a five-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract. That contract expires at the end of this month.

On wages, the union has asked for a 15-per-cent increase across the board for conductors and trainmen on freight and passenger service. It also seeks a revision on mileage rates so that the payment for 100 miles will equal six hours of work instead of eight. That means overtime would be paid after six hours instead of eight.

UN Finances Get Scrutiny

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)—The United Nations General Assembly adopted without opposition Monday a French plan for a full scale examination of United Nations' finances.

Moose Jaw

Four Face Charges After Gang Fracas

MOOSE JAW (CP)—One Moose Jaw youth was being held in custody, and three others were free on $12,000 bail Monday after a shooting incident involving youthful gangs in the fashionable North Hill section of Moose Jaw Sunday.

The fracas, which police said appeared to break out after one youth was abducted and assaulted by several others, and went to his gang for help, sent Wayne Lewry, 27, to hospital with undisclosed injuries. Lewry, nephew of Moose Jaw Mayor L. H. Lewry, was said to have been beaten with a wrench.

Charged in the incident were William Garth Matthews, 24, Richard Wayne Spicer, 18, Daniel Stevenson, 18 and Gerald Peters, 17. All but Stevenson were able to raise bail.

The youths are to appear in magistrate's court in Moose Jaw Dec. 20 to plead to charges of discharging a firearm with intent to endanger the lives of five other youths, also of Moose Jaw.

Judge J. J. Flynn of the Moose Jaw magistrat's court labeled the charges "extremely serious," and said he wanted an early trial for the youths.

Allied Drives Kill 800 Viet Cong Over Past Week

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. air force B-52 bombers from Guam were hurled against Communist Viet Cong hideouts above Phuoc Valley for the third consecutive day Tuesday as U.S. marines continued to press deeper into the Communist base area.

Three major battles of the past week have accounted for more than 800 Viet Cong dead, according to both estimates and number of confirmed kills.

There was no significant Viet Cong resistance as the leathernecks probed into caves big enough to hide a truck, and hauled out tons of food and Viet Cong supplies south of Da Nang.

In a successful campaign 75 miles southwest of Saigon, Viet Nam a U.S. government soldier killed 154 Viet Cong guerrillas, an American military spokesman said Tuesday.

The dead Viet Cong were counted on the battlefield in Vinh Binh province and were included in a "final report" marking the close of the two-day campaign Monday night.

The Vinh Binh victory came on the heels of another battle that accounted for another 18 Communist killed over the weekend in Go Cong province, 35 miles southwest of Saigon.

Free Turkey for Prizes

Shotgun Artist Can Aid Needy

Add to the fun the extra satisfaction of knowing you'll be helping Greater Victoria's poor enjoy a passably merry Christmas.

Saturday and Sunday are the days for the Victoria Gun Club's annual turkey shoot to help The Daily Colonist 500 and to help the destitute at Christmas.

This is the ninth year of the drive. Every year, a few days before Christmas, it gives the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria a cash Christmas gift to be spent however they wish.

Last year they each received $25.

And part of that came from the gun club.

This year they will give away 350 turkeys and 50 hams as prizes to gunners who blast enough clay pigeons to qualify. Even if you don't win a prize, the fun is worth the small price of trying.

never done it before, don't worry. There's a division for novices who have never even handled a shotgun.

And don't worry if you don't own a gun, shotguns are provided by the club.

The big shoot starts at 10 a.m. each day and ends when your shoulder is too sore for more.

It is held at the club's property on Metcalfe Road at Albert Head.

The club has already donated $300 to the fund. Over the week-end, these people also helped:

Buddhists Demand Apology By U.S.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A plastic dust cover carelessly left in a fuel line would have blocked the launch of the Gemini 6 space craft even if an electrical plug had not fallen out of the tail of the Titan II booster rocket.

And, if astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell had not been allowed to strip off their spacesuits at the same time, there might have been some doubt they could endure the discomforts of 14 days in space in the Gemini 7.

These disclosures came Monday as Borman and Lovell drove the Gemini 7 on toward new endurance records, and got the morale-lifting news that their rendezvous with Gemini 6 probably would be made at last, on Wednesday.

FALSE SIGNAL

Gemini 7 entered its 13th orbit at 6:02 p.m. EST.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said a review of Sunday's launch failure disclosed that one of the Titan's engines was malfunctioning when a false signal went out for both of them to shut down after ignition.

PLUG FELL OUT

The erroneous signal was given when an electrical plug, which tells the computer when the rocket leaves the pad, fell out of the booster. Because the computer knew the rocket still was on the pad, it sent a trouble and ordered a shutdown. But NASA said Monday that even if this command had not been given, another would have gone out 1:03 seconds later because of a malfunction in one engine caused by the dust cover.

DUST COVER

The Titan normally is held bolted to the pad for 3.6 seconds, until its engines build up sufficient thrust for the climb into space and while launch crews make certain all systems are functioning correctly.

The dust cover was found in an inlet port to a gas generator.

TWO-CENT BOOS

Officials revealed that the cover, which probably cost no more than two cents, was carelessly left attached when the rocket was assembled at the Martin Co. plant in Baltimore, Md.

LONDON (Reuters) — Wildlife officials, alarmed over Britain's declining frog population, have ordered a national frog census, it was disclosed Monday.

The census will be taken in conjunction with a scientific study of the effect of farm pesticides on Britain's wildlife. Hundred of amateur naturalists will be recruited in the next five years to help compile a frog distribution map.

FIRST REAL SURVEY

"It will be the first real survey ever made," said Dr. Frank Perrin, a plant specialist assigned to the nature conservancy's experimental station at Abbots Ripton. He will collate the frog data.

He expressed the belief that the results would show a steady decrease in British frogs over the last 20 years. Perrin said modern agricultural methods had disturbed the places they liked to live, such as farm ponds and dikes.

"Some schoolboys have never seen a real frog," he added.

Dams Ahead Of Schedule

VANCOUVER (CP) — Construction on the three Columbia River treaty dams is ahead of schedule, a British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority official said Monday.

Fred Spoke, assistant construction manager, said in a talk to the Gyro Club the dams will be completed on or before the dates specified in the treaty with the United States.

Grind cooked roast and combine with cooked mashed potatoes; shape into patties. Brown in skillet, add any leftover gravy. Pour on tomato sauce with mushrooms.

Agreed.

Pickets Back at Oil Plant

Talks to End Strike On Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks aimed at settling a three-month-old oil strike in British Columbia will resume today as the oilworkers' union reposes picket lines at British American Oil Co. plants.

Reg. Clements, B.C. government's chief conciliation officer, rescheduled the discussions at the request Monday of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (OCAW).

The only issue left unsettled is the company's seniority list. Union spokesmen say the company wants to break the present single provincial list into three separate areas.

The OCAW says such a breakdown would be detrimental to show up outside BA plants, the union members. First since picket lines were re-moved Nov. 24.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoid case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

In Face of Mothers' Plea

Construction Different Matter

Gagliardi Agrees to Survey for Truck Route

Petitioners alight, led by Mrs. Sandra Baikie (right)

Campbell River Group Meets Highways Chief

Meeting Highways Minister Gagliardi are Mrs. Larry Bundy (left), Mrs. Howard McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bordin, Mrs. Baikie, Coun. Isobel Sandberg.

Campbell Backs Protest

By JOY HUNTLEY

Highways Minister Gagliardi agreed to an immediate survey of a bypass route of the Island Highway around the settled portion of Campbell River district.

But he did not promise the survey would lead to immediate construction of the route, a step demanded by 40 mothers from Campbell River when they carried placards to the legislative buildings in Victoria and met the minister Monday.

DAUGHTER KILLED

Among the group were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bordin, who lost their daughter in a road accident on the highway just south of the municipality this fall.

Their daughter was one of two children to die on the stretch recently.

Coun. Isobel Sandberg told the highways minister the council is unanimously in support of the bypass highway request.

Mr. Gagliardi said he would give top priority to surveys, cost estimates, traffic counts, acquiring of access, and all preliminary work up to the point of construction.

Other priorities

But, on the demand for "immediate construction," Mr. Gagliardi said he has many other priorities from other parts of the province.

Comox MLA Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said he is behind the mothers' efforts.

Mr. Campbell squashed the popular misconception in Campbell River that a survey has already been done on a by-pass route.

The group was led by Mrs. Sandra Baikie, who told Mr. Gagliardi "A total of 18 accidents has occurred between Oyster River and Campbell River this month."

Rural Group Calls For Two Languages

NANAIMO — French and another language taught in primary grades, and more teachers teaching fewer pupils, are two strong resolutions of rural representatives on this school district.

They met last night and decided classes are too large. They said in one district class, three grades are taught with a ratio of 47 pupils to one teacher.

MAXIMUM LIMITS

The meeting passed a resolution demanding the school board set these maximum limits:

One grade, 27 pupils in a class; two grades in one room, 30 to a class; three grades, no more than 25 pupils.

The representatives said they wanted this measure taken, even though the board will be forced to hire more teachers over the limit that is shareable with the provincial government.

The representatives demanded children in Grades one to seven receive oral instruction in an oral language, French, and preferably two languages.

LANGUAGE CHOICE

The second language, they said, should be chosen from Russian, Chinese, Spanish, German.

The representatives chose three school trustees:

Dr. Sven Jensen, Wellington and Lantzville; Joe Shook, Northfield, Departure Bay and East Wellington; Mrs. Doris Menard, Extension, South Wellington, Waterloo and Chase River.

Port Alberni Council Told

Senior Governments 'Must Curb Pollution'

PORT ALBERNI — Pollution must be controlled at the federal or provincial level, according to two city officials.

Mayor Les Hammer said "the Pollution Control Board is doing all that is possible with the slender resources at hand."

"But 20 municipalities speak for itself."

RUMORS NOT TRUE

Also at the meeting Ald. Dalton said there is no truth to the rumor that the city's inhalator crew is charging for responding to calls, and no truth to the rumor that sometimes it does not respond at all.

Ald. J. A. Dalton and works superintendent Len Crowshaw attended a conference on water pollution Dec. 2 and 3 in Vancouver.

REPORT TO COUNCIL

Monday, they reported back to city council.

"No one has the right to pollute water," commented Mr. Crowshaw.

"B.C.'s pollution control act is one of the strongest there is, but how can the pollution control board enforce it, with a budget of only $25,000?"

He said even this figure represents a big gain, because "not too long ago the budget was $2,500."

Mr. Crowshaw said "if the public keeps the pressure on, we still have a chance to control our pollution problems."

APATHY SHOCKING

Of 120 municipalities, only 20 delegates attended, including two from the Alberni Valley.

"I was horrified at the apathy of B.C. municipalities," said Ald. Dalton.

The meeting was sponsored by the University of British Columbia, and included university experts, government re-

Recount Favors Sewer Bylaw

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal officials are happy that the $355,000 sewer bylaw for the Chemainus area came through after all.

Saturday it seemed defeated by two votes but a recount Monday showed a vote of 60.2 per cent in favor which squeezed it through.

Beeve Donald Morton said the required waiting period before any action can be taken is 30 days.

Immediate action would have been possible if the majority had been overwhelming.

Downtown Duncan

Parking Policy Irks Merchants

DUNCAN — Downtown businessmen registered strong complaints about the parking system in the core of the city, at a meeting of city council Monday.

Fifteen merchants presented a brief which said:

Existing parking is inadequate; proposals have been presented, but council has not come up with a solution; lack of policy has caused apathy in investment.

DISCRIMINATION

The merchants claimed there is discrimination in metering, and there should be a policy for greater customer use of the civic parking lot.

Norman Gourlay proposed a mound, covered with trees, be levelled in the parking lot to provide more car space.

MORE SPACES

Ald. Jim Saunders agreed, and said this measure would provide 75 more parking spaces.

Mayor Jack Dobson said the mound was kept as a beauty spot, and as a place where children can play.

The mayor said council is negotiating with the CPR's real estate firm for a piece of property along the railway track, for parking space.

Merchants said the business tax should be used as a fund to provide more parking.

The mayor said in many communities large stores are required to provide parking. He said one big Duncan store provides space for only 10 cars.

School Priorities Not Yet Decided

NANAIMO — Nanaimo school board has not yet decided priorities for its building program, passed by taxpayers Saturday.

District engineer Jim Thorpe said Monday a 30-day waiting period has to pass before the two money bylaws, totalling $3,300,000, become final.

Mr. Thorpe added architects still must be chosen.

The $3,000,000 referendum for a new junior high at Wellington, plus other high school and elementary classrooms received an overall 69 per cent majority.

In the city it did not receive a 60 per cent majority with 1,541 yes votes and 916 no.

The rural area was heavily in favor, 1,255 yes to 362 against.

In the district only North Cedar voted against the referendum.

Arena Financing 'Not Adequate'

NORTH COWICHAN — "We are not working for the defeat of the Fuller's Lake arena," claims a spokesman for the recently-formed Recreation Study Group.

The group was formed just before the municipal election, and criticized the arena centennial project, to cost $300,000, which will be put to voters in February.

Spokesman Mel Massey said "we offered criticism based on facts."

Mr. Massey said North Cowichan's proposal to contribute towards another recreation centre in the southern portion of the municipality would not be adequate for two reasons:

The unorganized area in the south cannot contribute directly; and the city of Duncan's share "is likely to be inadequate for a two-fifth or three-fifth share."

Members of the Recreation Study group claim North Cowichan is not big enough to support two recreational centres.

Mr. Massey said "We propose no vote be taken until a regional recreation planning commission is formed from the present commissions."

ELIGIBLE FOR GRANTS

"This would make the proposed centres eligible for increased grants and most important the unorganized south would be able to contribute from taxes raised there."

Mr. Massey said his group suggests the purchase of 20 acres of land adjacent to Cowichan Exhibition grounds and Pioneer Park along the Trans-Canada Highway.

He said assets to a recreational centre there would be: High school facilities and cinder track with a possible stadium nearby, privately owned curling-skating rink, bowling alley, and the Cowichan Exhibition.

Accused Held For Rape

DUNCAN — Sidney John Leblanc, 22, Cowichan Bay, was remanded in custody until the date is set for a preliminary hearing into a charge of rape involving a married woman Sunday.

He pleaded not guilty to common assault and was remanded until January.

The latter charge arose from an incident Nov. 20.

Mouth Guards for All

Dentists Work to Save Youngsters' Teeth

NANAIMO — More than 500 young hockey players from as far away as Chemainus were fitted with mouth guards Sunday.

Members of Nanaimo Dental Association devoted their time free of charge, hockey official George Gow said, starting at noon and finishing at 5 p.m.

WATER HEATED

Parents brought along electric kettles and frying pans to heat water for the mass operation.

The mouth guards are made of plastic and must be warmed to a specified temperature before they can be moulded to each boy's mouth.

If properly cared for, the guards will last indefinitely and can be re-shaped as the player's mouth changes with age.

Mr. Gow said if the same work was done in a dentist's office it would cost as much as $10, but on Sunday only a nominal charge was made.

TEETH CHIPPED

He went on to say many boys in the 10 to 15 age bracket received mouth injuries while playing hockey especially chipped teeth.

Eventually it is hoped to make mouth guards obligatory among minor hockey players in B.C.

Bride Carries Pink Roses

Petal-point sleeves and a rounded neckline highlighted the floor-length gown of white peau de sole worn by Wendy Lynne Wescott Saturday afternoon when she became the bride of Donald Murray Lidgate. White gardenias and pearls held her four tier scalloped veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

In Oak Bay United Church, Rev. A. Calder heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Wescott, 1415 Simon Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Lidgate, 485 Fraser Street. Mr. Wescott gave his daughter in marriage.

Matron of honor Mrs. Thomas Harper wore a floor-length gown of blue peau de sole, styled with a bell-shaped skirt. Her headpiece was a bow of the same material as her dress.

Bridesmaid Miss Gay Wescott, the bride's sister, wore a gown identical to the matron of honor's dress. In rose-pink peau de sole. Both carried bouquets of pink and white carnations. Jewelry was black diamond necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Robert A. Cato was best man at the ceremony and guests were ushered by Nelson Morey.

Clare Potter proposed the toast to his niece at the reception in the Club Tango, where the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake which was flanked with pink roses and candles.

A cherry red suit and black accessories, complemented with a corsage of cherry red orchids, was the bride's choice for travelling on honeymoon to Seattle and Portland.

When they return, the couple will live at 845 Burdett Street.

Festive Season

Snow Cloud Punch For Holiday Party

There are many sounds and smells that let us know winter is here—the crackling fire in the fireplace, the pungent fresh scent of evergreens, the laughter of children. This is the season, too, of cooking and baking for festive holiday parties.

The next time you have a winter party, toast the occasion with cups of warming Snow Cloud Punch. This economical drink is a delicious blending of chocolate, coffee, eggs and instant pasteurized powdered skim milk. Growups and children both love its delicate texture and flavour. It is a nourishing beverage, too, for instant pasteurized powdered skim milk contains all the calcium, phosphorus and protein of fresh whole milk.

SNOW CLOUD PUNCH
(Makes 24 servings)
Four cups instant pasteurized powdered skim milk; 2 cups chocolate syrup; 2½ quarts coffee; 6 eggs, slightly beaten;

2 tablespoons vanilla; 2½ cups whipped instant pasteurized powdered skim milk.*

Stir instant pasteurized powdered skim milk and chocolate syrup into coffee in saucepan. Heat to just below a boil. Gradually add about 1 cup hot mixture to beaten eggs, stirring constantly. Stir into remaining hot mixture and cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Stir in vanilla, fold in half of whipped instant pasteurized powdered skim milk. Serve topped with remaining whipped topping.

*To whip instant pasteurized powdered skim milk: (Makes about 2½ cups).
1. Mix ¼ cup instant pasteurized powdered skim milk with ½ cup ice water in bowl.

2. Whip until soft peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

3. Continue whipping until stiff peaks form (3 to 4 minutes longer).

4. Gradually add ¼ cup sugar.

SPICED HOT CHOCOLATE MILK
(Makes 6 servings)

Six cups reliquified instant pasteurized powdered skim milk (according to package directions); 2 to 3 squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened chocolate; ½ cup sugar; ¼ teaspoon cloves; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: I received tremendous response to the letter from the mother of the 15-year-old mental patient who committed her son to a state mental hospital. She wrote, "I know patients used to be treated like animals but I thought conditions had been improved." Her signature was "Faith Shattered."

I asked my readers if this letter could have come from THEIR state. Here is a sampling of the replies:

California: I am a former patient of a state mental hospital in California. It might surprise you but I am taking the side of the state. If that boy tried to escape twice, the third time he might have twisted the iron leg off a bed and split a nurse's head open.

I was put into solitary when I imagined the attendants were conspiring to kill me and hide my body.

I threw a full tray of food at a nurse and I was placed in a room with only a mattress on the floor. Now that I am well I understand things better. The employees of the California state hospital system deserve medals for their bravery and their kindness.—D.B.L.

North Carolina: I, too, had a teen-age son who was committed to a state mental hospital. I thought the attendants were mistreating him because he cried so much. I know now he only wanted to be taken home where he would get his own way. Today the boy is 21 and self-supporting. Our state hospital did for him what I, his mother, could never have done.—APPRECIATE.

Michigan: I have nothing but good to report about the Traverse City state hospital. I was a patient there for over a year. The food was good, the rooms were clean and the attendants, doctors and nurses were kind and thoughtful. I now hold a responsible position, drive my own car and am living proof that the mentally ill can be rehabilitated.—T.C.R.

North Dakota: I am a 16-year-old boy who has spent eight months in the state hospital. I just read the letter from the mother who complained about the way they treated her son. What did she expect? Color TV in every room maybe? A lot of kids who are mentally ill get away with murder at home. This doesn't help them to get well. I know because it was part of my problem. They are teaching me here to be an adult, and I am grateful.—EX PSYCHO.

New York: I was a patient in a New York state mental hospital and I swear to God a person couldn't get better treatment if he went to the fanciest private hospital in the country.—RECOVERED.

Illinois: My sister is a patient at the Illinois Psychiatric Institute. We hated to commit her because we heard state hospitals were snake pits. I can report that she has been treated beautifully and has shown remarkable improvement. I thank the Lord we live in Illinois.—PROUD.

Connecticut: "Faith Shattered" could not have written from our state. We operate two residential treatment programs for children up to 16, plus many child guidance clinics. We have excellent recreational facilities complete with swimming pool. Connecticut does very well by her disturbed children and she hopes to do even better.—SEN. ABRAHAM BIRKOFF.

Indiana: After living next door to a 15-year-old homicidal boy whose parents took him out of a mental hospital because they didn't treat him like royalty. I have a word to say to all mothers of disturbed children: I heard the rifle shot that killed the boy's grandmother. I saw them carry the body out of the house. I recall how his mother kept saying he'd "outgrow his meanness."

Our late president was assassinated by a man whose mother didn't know he needed psychiatric care either and the world has suffered the consequences.—INDIANA.

Duncan Dairy Farmer Tops List

DUNCAN — Dairy farmer G. A. Van Jaarsveld has set a new record for milk production on Vancouver Island with his four-year-old Holstein Tall Trees Ideal Pride, which produced during one lactation period a total of 27,235 pounds of milk and 1,025 pounds of butterfat.

Cowichan Dairy Herd Improvement Association said during November a total of 59 records were completed consisting of 43 Holstein, 12 Jersey, three Guernsey and one cross-bred. Thirty-one mature cows qualified out of 45, and seven two-year-olds out of 14.

While top winner, Mr. Van Jaarsveld was awarded a feed prize from the B and K Company, similar prizes went to E. H. Huisman and G. A. Baumgart. Mr. Huisman received the

Mayor Hammer Backs Trip for Prize Table

PORT ALBERNI — The centennial committee's efforts to have Gene Budney's prize-winning table displayed at Expo 67 in Montreal have the enthusiastic blessing of Mayor Les Hammer.

"Officially, I know nothing about the proposal," the mayor said, "but I understand that while a private citizen cannot enter his own work, suitable items can be sponsored by a centennial committee, as our local group has suggested."

"I'd like to see them go even further, and include exceptional carvings by some of our native artists."

The centennial committee has been reported considering sending a magnificent inlaid table made by Port resident Gene Budney to Montreal for the 1967 World's Fair.

Mr. Budney who works as a millwright with Somass division of Mac-Powell, named the 21 hardwoods that went into its construction.

Imported from all over the world they include ebony, holly, east Indian rosewood, birch, African rosewood, western maple, Honduras mahogany, black walnut, Japanese maple, vermillion, Korina, African cherry, oak, teak, lignum vitae and African mahogany.

The smallest piece is only 15/1000 of an inch wide, and 76,376 pieces went into the design.

After taking first prize locally, the table took a silver medal, first in marquetry in Vancouver and the Dr. G. H. Young shield for excellence of design and use of medium; first prize in Edmonton and first in Toronto at the CNE and also best in woodwork.

10 Miles, 10 Minutes

Road Death Follows Speed Bet

NANAIMO — There will be no inquest into the death of Mervin Oswald Mark Everett Edgar, 42, found dead beside a Gabriola Island road at 3 a.m. Saturday.

Coroner Russ Inkster spent Saturday afternoon on the island with RCMP officers investigating the accident and decided there would be no inquest.

Mr. Edgar was found pinned beneath his demolished car, by Mrs. Jerry Rowan.

He had apparently made a bet he could travel the 10 miles between Surf Lodge and Grand Hotel in 10 minutes, said the coroner.

This road is paved only along the first part, and Edgar failed to negotiate a curve.

Mr. Inkster said death was instantaneous.

He said he believed excessive speed was the main factor causing the accident, but alcohol could be a factor too.

There were no witnesses to the mishap which took place at approximately 11:30 p.m. Friday night.

AI Cost Boosted

DUNCAN — Members of Cowichan Agricultural Society have learned the local Artificial Insemination Centre is faced with increasing its special storage facilities for frozen semen, to cost over $2,000.

It was noted the society here is not in a position to make a decision on raising the insemination fees without consulting Cedar, Coombs and Cobble Hill Farmers' Institutes.

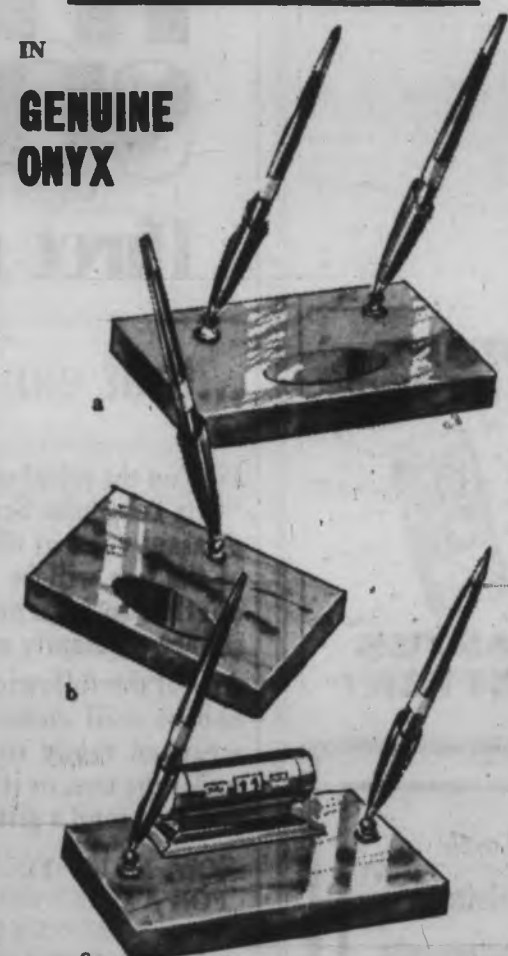

The AI Association at Milner, where the Duncan centre draws its supplies, said after Jan. 1 next year all semen shipped will be frozen.

Campbell Blames Civic Leaders

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Monday that Saturday's hospital financing referendum went down the drain because it was opposed all the way by Greater Victoria's municipal leaders.

How could civic leaders be in disagreement when the scope of the regional board's responsibilities was hammered out months ago in a series of in-camera meetings with the municipal affairs minister?

"They were never in support of the addition of the hospital function to the regional board," Mr. Campbell said.

As a result, the referendum "did not get positive support from municipal leaders" and "it did not get enough votes to pass."

Mr. Campbell explained what had happened when he met behind closed doors with mayor and reeves of Greater Victoria and representatives of nearby areas to plan the regional board's functions.

Municipal leaders generally agreed that the new board should look after such problems as regional parks, a regional sewer study and uniform control of sale of fireworks, he said.

They did not want the hospital function to be included.

The municipal affairs minister had established a policy that no other function would be added to the regional board unless there was mutual agreement among the participants.

After this policy had been established, however, the federal government announced that a Canadian medicare scheme would be brought in by 1967.

This announcement, said Mr. Campbell, meant "there would be an increasing need for hospitals here."

He therefore went against the policy which he had established, and called the mayor, reeves and representatives together for a meeting on Oct. 4, at which time he said he intended to include administration of hospital

Allied Drives Kill 800 Viet Cong Over Past Week

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. air force B-52 bombers from Guam were hurled against Communist Viet Cong hideouts above Phuoc Valley for the third consecutive day Tuesday as U.S. marines continued to press deeper into the Communist base area.

Three major battles of the past week have accounted for more than 800 Viet Cong dead, according to both estimates and number of confirmed kills.

NO RESISTANCE

There was no significant Viet Cong resistance as the leather-necks probed into caves big enough to hide a truck, and hauled out tons of food and Viet Cong supplies south of Da Nang.

In a successful campaign 75 miles southwest of Saigon, Viet Nam, a U.S. government soldier killed 154 Viet Cong guerrillas, an American military spokesman said Tuesday.

FINAL REPORT

The dead Viet Cong were counted on the battlefield in Vinh Binh province and were included in a "final report" marking the close of the two-day campaign Monday night.

The Vinh Binh victory came on the heels of another battle that accounted for another 181 Communist killed over the weekend in Go Cong province, 35 miles southwest of Saigon.

Space Doctor And Wife Missing

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace II, the U.S. space agency's director of space medicine, and his wife and a pilot were reported missing Monday on a private plane flight from Aspen, Colo., to Albuquerque.

The weather between Aspen and Albuquerque was described Monday as bad and was expected to slow any search-and-rescue operations.

Shotgun Artist Can Aid Needy

Grab a shotgun and blast your way to a free turkey for Christmas this weekend.

Add to the fun the extra satisfaction of knowing you'll be helping Greater Victoria's poor enjoy a passably merry Christmas.

Saturday and Sunday are the days for the Victoria Gun Club's annual turkey shoot to help The Daily Colonist 500 Fund to help the destitute at Christmas.

This is the ninth year of the fund. Every year, a few days before Christmas, it gives the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria a cash Christmas gift to be spent however they wish.

Last year they each received $25.

And part of that came from the gun club.

This year they will give away 350 turkeys and 50 hams as prizes to gunners who blast enough clay pigeons to qualify. Even if you don't win a prize, the fun is worth the small price of trying.

The game is standard trap shooting, and if you have never done it before, don't worry. There's a division for novices who have never even handled a shotgun.

And don't worry if you don't own a gun, shotguns are provided by the club.

The big shoot starts at 10 a.m. each day and ends when your shoulder is too sore for more.

It is held at the club's property on Metcalfe Road at Albert Head.

The club has already donated $300 to the fund. Over the weekend, these people also helped:

Buddhists Demand Apology By U.S.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A plastic dust cover carelessly left in a fuel line would have blocked the launch of the Gemini 6 space craft even if an electrical plug had not fallen out of the tail of the Titan II booster rocket.

And, if astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell had not been allowed to strip off their spacesuits at the same time, there might have been some doubt they could endure the discomforts of 14 days in space in the Gemini 7.

These disclosures came Monday as Borman and Lovell drove the Gemini 7 on toward new endurance records, and got the morale-lifting news that their rendezvous with Gemini 6 probably would be made at last, on Wednesday.

FALSE SIGNAL

Gemini 7 entered its 13th orbit at 4:02 p.m. EST.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said a review of Sunday's launch failure disclosed that one of the Titan II engines was malfunctioning when a false signal went out for both of them to shut down after ignition.

FLUG FELL OUT

The erroneous signal was given when an electrical plug which tells the computer when the rocket leaves the pad, fell out of the booster. Because the computer knew the rocket still was on the pad, it sensed trouble and ordered a shutdown.

But NASA said Monday that even if this command had been given, another would have gone out 1:03 seconds later because of a malfunction in one engine caused by the dust cover.

DUST COVER

The Titan normally is held bolted to the pad for 3.6 seconds until its engines build up sufficient thrust for the climb into space and while launch crews make certain all systems are functioning correctly.

The dust cover was found in an inlet port to a gas generator.

TWO-CENT BOOB

Crews pushed toward a new launch attempt at 8:37 a.m. Wednesday.

Officials revealed that the cover, which probably cost no more than two cents, was carelessly left attached when the rocket was assembled at the Martin Co. plant in Baltimore, Md.

SAIGON (UPI) — A national Buddhist conference called here Monday for the U.S. embassy to formally apologize for the alleged desecration of a pagoda by American marines.

After more than 30 minutes of bitter debate, the more than 300 delegates also decided to demand the Vietnamese government intervene to avoid any future incidents in order to "save the honor of Buddhism."

STATUE BROKEN

The debate focused on an incident 10 days ago, when Buddhist priests at the Khue Back pagoda in Hoa Long village found the statue of Buddha decapitated and filth strewn on the temple floor.

Buddhist officials charged two marines seen leaving the pagoda were responsible. The U.S. embassy has said the incident was being investigated.

SAV MARINES

The senior Buddhist priest, Thich Giac Ngo, quoted one of the pagoda's younger priests as saying he had seen the two marines leaving the temple shortly before the damage was discovered.

Rev. Ngo became so distressed he later threatened to commit suicide by disemboweling in order to atone for the desecration.

MEASURES SOUGHT

Delegates from Quang Nam province surrounding the marines' base at Da Nang, argued in favor of the Buddhists taking "measures" to assure that American troops respect Buddhist pagodas. This was understood to mean public pressure, possibly demonstrations.

One aged monk charged that 21 pagodas have been destroyed recently during fighting around Da Nang. He said that 11 Buddhists, including priests and children, have been killed, and "many more have been wounded by the bombing and artillery."

Test Freedman Report

Trainmen Will Demand Revolutionary Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (BRT) is scheduled to open contract negotiations with the CNR Thursday in what will be the first test of revolutionary proposals made last week by the Freedman inquiry into CNR crew run-throughs.

W. P. Kelly, BRT vice-president, said in an interview Monday the brotherhood's negotiators intend to make a bargaining issue of Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman's recommendation that the CNR negotiate with its unions on new working conditions brought about by technological change.

The Freedman report said there is an injustice in present labor laws, under which unions are helpless against such changes introduced while a collective agreement is in force. He recommended the law be changed and specifically urged the CNR to accept the new principle voluntarily.

Mr. Kelly said the BRT demands, served on the major railways last month before the Freedman report was made public, include the introduction of a contract clause providing that "no material change in conditions of employment" will be introduced without union-management negotiations.

A similar item was contained in the demands made by the union two years ago. It was later set aside during bargaining which led to a five-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract. That contract expires at the end of this month.

On wages, the union has asked for a 15-per-cent increase across the board for conductors and trainmen on freight and passenger service. It also seeks a revision on mileage rates so that the payment for 100 miles will equal six hours of work instead of eight. That means overtime would be paid after seven hours instead of eight.

NO-WAR PLEDGE OFFERED

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan Monday offered to sign a "no war pledge" with India in an attempt to bring lasting peace to the Asian subcontinent.

Ayub made the dramatic offer in a remarkably short address before the 117-member General Assembly. At the same time, Ayub demanded that India "honor" a commitment to hold a plebiscite to settle the future of the disputed area of Kashmir.

The Indian delegation heard Ayub's words but failed to join in the burst of applause that greeted the Pakistani president when he concluded his address.

VICTIOUS CIRCLE

Noting that India and Pakistan "cannot afford to live in a state of tension," Ayub said a "way must be found out of this vicious circle" of conflict that has embroiled the two Asian powers for two decades.

"For my part," he said, "I make this offer: 'Let India and Pakistan sign a no-war pledge' and 'let us also agree to settle all disputes through negotiation or mediation.'"

Ayub attempted to bypass India's insistence that the future of Kashmir has long been

Britain, Ireland Free Trade

LONDON (Reuters) — A free-trade agreement between Britain and Ireland was reached at talks in London, it was officially announced Monday night.

The agreement probably will be signed today.

The announcement came after a round of talks lasting until after midnight.

Prime ministers of the two countries, Harold Wilson and Sean Lemass, led the negotiations on the Anglo-Irish free trade agreement.

The two-nation free trade area would boost sales of Irish farm products to Britain and of British manufactured goods to Ireland.

Under the agreement Ireland, a traditional food supplier to Britain, would step up its shipments of meat, dairy products and livestock. In return it would reduce import duties on British industrial items.

Quarantine Of North Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Republicans urged President Johnson Monday to apply against North Viet Nam the kind of quarantine the late president John F. Kennedy used again Cuba in the 1962 missile crisis.

A statement assailed what it called "the inadequacy of Johnson's leadership in fighting the Southeast Asia war."

Moose Jaw

Four Face Charges After Gang Fracas

MOOSE JAW (CP) — One Moose Jaw youth was being held in custody, and three others were free on $12,000 bail Monday after a shooting incident involving youthful gangs in the fashionable North Hill section of Moose Jaw Sunday.

The fracas, which police said appeared to break out after one youth was abducted and assaulted by several others, and went to his gang for help, sent Wayne Lewry, 27, to hospital with undisclosed injuries. Lewry, nephew of Moose Jaw Mayor L. H. Lewry, was said to have been beaten with a wrench.

Charged in the incident were William Garth Matthews, 24, Richard Wayne Spicer, 18, Daniel Stevenson, 18 and Gerald Peters, 17. All but Stevenson were able to raise bail.

The youths are to appear in magistrate's court in Moose Jaw Dec. 20 to plead to charges of discharging a firearm with intent to endanger the lives of five other youths, also of Moose Jaw.

Judge J. J. Flynn of the Moose Jaw magistrate's court labeled the charges "extremely serious," and said he wanted an early trial for the youths.
